Remember Parks

Marshall Parks (1820-1900) was the founder of Virginia Beach. Virginia Beach was 100 years old in 1983, and owes its beginning to the railroad.

Marshall Parks was a pioneer canal builder; inventor; steamboat owner, captain, and innovator; and entrepreneur. He built three canals, the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal, the Fairfield Canal, and the New Berne and Beaufort Canal. He was associated with the Dismal Swamp Canal with his father, and was superintendent after his father's death. He was postmaster and major in the militia before his twenty-first birthday. Ferdinand DeLesseps sent a representative to examine the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal before he constructed the Suez Canal.

He promoted the railroad to Virginia Beach, the first hotel, and Virginia Beach as a first-class resort. He was a Norfolk city councilman and a state legislator. He was appointed commissioner to organize the North Carolina Navy at the start of the Civil War, and was a commodore in the Confederate States Navy. He was appointed by President Cleveland as Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels from Baltimore to Florida. He was President of the Portsmouth Water Co.

Marshall Parks was descended from Samuel Boush, the first mayor of Norfolk, and from George Wythe's sister, Ann Wythe. He is also descended from the family of William Congreve, English dramatist and poet, and Sir William Congreve. The latter improved the fireworks rocket, first used in the Napoleonic Wars; the rocket referred to in "The Star Spangled Banner."

His father, Marshall Parks (1786-1840), was a successful contractor, hotel owner, lumber merchant, master stonemason and steamboat owner. He was superintendent, builder, and chief engineer of the Dismal Swamp Canal.

Marshall Parks is not recognized for his accomplishments. Very few people in the city he founded have ever heard of him.

A complete and comprehensive bibliography on Marshall Parks has been prepared and is available in libraries. A copy of the bibliography will be furnished on request.

Celebration of Virginia Beach Founder's Day annually on his birthday, November 8, will be a suitable acknowledgement of his contributions to the early days of the city.

Guest editorial:
Congressman Owen B. Pickett

Several months ago, a young Norfolk man came into my Washington office in the hope that someone could give him the help he urgently needed. This young man, who had recently been released from the State's correctional system, was unemployed, homeless and unable either to read or write. Like so many other Americans with serious personal problems, he turned to his congressman for help.

After learning of the young man's plight, a member of my staff went immediately to work to find him some help. Within one week and after making dozens of telephone calls to social service agencies in the Washington area, my office located a shelter where he could stay at night and receive one hot meal a day. We also helped him enroll in an adult education program where he could learn to read and write.

My office hasn't heard from the young man since mid-summer, but at that time he indicated that he was doing much better. He had even found a job.

While the vast majority of Second District residents who communicate with my office each month don't have problems as severe as the one presented here, I mention this case because it reflects the kind of aggressive, results-oriented approach my staff and I adopt when solving constituent problems. Because I regard service to constituents as such a big part of a congressman's job, I have opened two district offices that are staffed by professionals experienced in handling a variety of problems.

Our most frequent requests are for help with Social Security, veterans' benefits, federal retirement, or "Champus" claims, but we are also prepared to assist service personnel with problems unique to military life and others, such as travelers,

Odometer tampering is bad business

Question: I'm in the market for a used car in Virginia Beach but have heard a lot about odometer tampering lately. How can I tell if a car's odometer has been tampered with?

Answer: Illegal odometer alteration has become a serious problem for consumers in recent years. The estimated dollar amount lost to odometer tampering each year has reached an alarming $3 to $4 billion. For this reason, it's always a good idea to check a used car over thoroughly before you buy it. Because a car's mileage is used as a prime indicator of its worth, unscrupulous salespeople often "roll back" the odometer — decreasing the mileage and increasing the value. If you ask questions and do your homework before agreeing to a purchase, you should be able to avoid becoming a victim of odometer fraud.

When you buy a used car, federal law requires the seller to provide you with a disclosure statement, certifying that the odometer reading is a true reflection of the car's mileage. If the odometer reading is not accurate or has passed 99,000 miles, the statement must acknowledge this. Be suspicious if a car dealer refuses to give you a disclosure statement or tells you that such a statement is not necessary. The statement is necessary and if the seller will not give you one, you probably should not do business with him.

If you suspect that a car's odometer reading has been altered but aren't sure, there are several tell-tale signs to look for. You should first look for physical evidence of tampering. Check for marks and scratches on the odometer. Also look to see if the numbers are misaligned. Any oil stickers, inspection stickers or tire warranty cards for the car will have a dated mileage reading recorded on them. Compare that recorded mileage with the present mileage — the present mileage will naturally be higher if the reading is correct. An odometer that does not fit snugly into the dashboard may be cause for suspicion. If you doubt the validity of a car's odometer reading, it might be a good idea to have a trustworthy mechanic look at the car.

Another way to discover if the odometer has been tampered with is to review disclosure statements from past owners. Ask the seller for the statement that he received when he got the car. A law which was passed in 1978 requires car dealers to keep these type of statements on file for at least four years. You can also contact the car's former owners to ask for verification of the automobile's true mileage.

If you're in the market for a used car, it's always important to investigate before you buy. Checking out a car's background, how it has been treated and how much it has been driven, is just as important as looking under the hood. If you discover that the car's odometer has been tampered with after you buy it, you have the right to take the seller to court. You can also report the violation to the Federal government and let them decide on the proper action. Address your complaint to:

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration
Office of the Chief Counsel
400 Seventh St. S.W.

You're not stuck if it's a "lemon"

Question: I bought a new car nine months ago and have had it in the repair shop five times since then. Is there anything I can do to get my money back?

Answer: Under the Virginia Motor Vehicle Warranty Enforcement Act, commonly called the "Lemon Law," your new car may be considered a "lemon." The term "lemon" refers to an automobile that has been taken back to the repair shop at least four times for the same problem, or has been in the shop for thirty days or more, during the first year of purchase. It is important to note, that your car's problem must be a defect or condition which significantly impairs its use, market value, or safety. If you have experienced such a problem with your new car, you may be entitled to a repair, replacement or refund. The Law provides "lemon" owners with a specific set of procedures to be followed when seeking reimbursement.

Your first step in the legal process is to notify the manufacturer in writing. Though not required, it's advisable to send the notification by certified mail, return receipt requested. You should be able to find the address of the manufacturer's district office in your owner's manual. Once notified, the manufacturer is given another opportunity to correct the problem and must respond within 15 days. If you have given written notification, and the problem has not yet been fixed at the time of the warranty's expiration date, your warranty will be automatically extended.

Off the Record

By Heidi Kettler

Flying objects turn roads into obstacle courses

Projectiles from cars are one thing that are a constant irritation and danger in my line of work. Being on the road, going from one assignment to the next, I often run, literally into such annoyances.

Take the crushed ice that smacked into my windshield after the passenger in the car ahead of me decided to toss out of her window the ice in her cup. No damage done to the car windshield, but the resonating sound was enough for me to momentarily lose control of my car.

Probably the most harrowing close call I encountered was almost running into articles falling from a vehicle while I was leading a caravan of rugby players to a college match. I quickly approached on a highway a rickety truck moving household furnishings when suddenly a bump or a strong gust of wind caused a chair and table to tip over the side of the truck and onto the roadway.

As the table and chair bounced precariously on the road, I found myself playing out in real life one of those video race car obstacle games. Swerving right into the center of the lane, I managed to just bump into the desk. Then quickly to the opposite direction, careening along the berm, I missed the table.

The guys in back of me weren't as lucky. One ended up with a dented fender. Another screamed to a halt in the middle of the highway, the passengers all winding up in the front seat, and the third car had some very decisive scars where the chair landed, and hung on to the car hood.

After everything, including all the vehicles, came to a rest somewhere along a quarter-mile stretch, rugby players came rushing out of the cars ready to play rugby with the truck driver. Slowly the driver behind the truck wheel revealed himself, a very apologetic and somewhat disoriented old man. As it turned out, everyone kept their cool and helped the man with his loose articles, leaving him with a stern suggestion to tie them down at his soonest convenience.

There's not much drivers can do to take the law into their own hands and to let the violating driver either pay consequences for his stupidity or to ensure greater respect for other drivers in the future. So, it's funny while driving to see the reaction of drivers to others' mistakes. You will see fists shaking, horns honking, and the favorite, obscene gestures, and you can almost read the lips of the victims, at least the people who thought they were victimized.

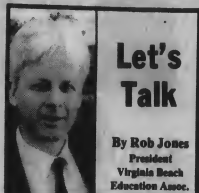

I have even observed how one person, upset with a tailgater, got out of his car at the red light, hauled the tailgater out of his car and popped him one in the nose (ouch!), then released the man and stomped back to his car. Luckily, I suppose, the tailgater wasn't an unsuspecting woman.

Getting back to the original subject, I read in the newspaper recently how a woman was arrested because, according to her testimony, she honked at an unmarked police car after the officer reportedly disposed of his hamburger wrapper via the car window. I'd do something like that and wouldn't expect to get arrested for it. But, the officer arrested her for something like public disorder because, according to his testimony, she did more than honk her horn. She reportedly tried to run him off the road. Who would you believe?

I think it is generally considered illegal to litter. Yet, I wonder how many violators are arrested. I've seen enough to keep Portsmouth's judges busy for months with just litter bugs.

Op-ed

Headlines the public never sees

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

Writing a weekly column really helps me appreciate how difficult it is to report the news or editorialize as this column usually does. The more I write, the more I find myself reading. And one weekly newspaper that is on my agenda that most citizens have never heard of and even many teachers know little about is Education Week.

This newspaper covers the waterfront on what is happening in education. From colleges and universities to day care and preschool. The paper prints the good news about schools and education. The paper also prints the bad news and controversy in education in America today. I love to read articles about my national organization. The paper pulls no punches, and I think its reporting has helped NEA leaders think through some difficult decisions and "straighten out our act." But my main purpose in mentioning Education Week is to share some of the headlines in the most recent issue, so you can have a glimpse of some of the controversy going in our country over education today.

Parent's Anger and Activism

Targets School Reform in Wake of Bitter Strike. Parents and community groups have started a massive effort to improve the public schools in Chicago blaming the city and state political leaders as well as leaders of the school system and the teacher's union.

Districts Turn to Nonprofit Group for Help in 'Realigning' Curricula to Parallel Tests. A school district in Kansas "realigned" its curriculum in grades K-8 so it closely matched what was tested by the state's minimum-competency test. Scores skyrocketed. Surprised?

Year-Round School Plan Tabbed. The Los Angeles Board of Education is reconsidering its plan to put all city schools on a single year-round calendar. The year-round system was opposed due to vacation and busing plans.

Prodncer of "Teachers' Back Teaching." "I found that Hollywood was the glamorous girlfriend, but that teaching was the woman I married," said Irwin Russo. He teaches high school English.

Corporation's Refusal to Pay Taxes Cripples N.Y. District's Budget. When Allied-Signal Corporation refused to pay $1.4 million in property taxes, the Solvay school budget came up 34 percent short. Now, I know why communities want a diversified economy.

"Fifteen girls who were strip searched at a junior high school in Ohio will receive $5,000 each as part of a legal settlement with the district," reported Education Week this week. The reason cited for the search was a missing watch and ring.

More New Math? A new math curriculum being developed in California favors hands-on, cooperative learning over rote drill. One goal of the curriculum revisions is to get publishers to try to get students involved in investigatory activities. Let's hope it adds up.

Values Education Supported. The National School Boards Association just released a report that says values should be taught both explicitly, through the curriculum, and implicitly, through practice and example. For $9.00 you can find out how much value you want to put on the report.

Studies Shed New Light on Teen-Age Suicides. One study said that a suicide prevention program in New Jersey may have had a negative impact on those most in need of help. A second study refutes reports that television dramas on suicide bring on more teenage suicides.

And finally, Education Week reported that a Dallas man padlocked and then stacked hay in front of the doors of a school to prevent its use. Hey, Hey, Hey.

Parent-Teacher Conferences next week. Parents of elementary school students will be visiting teachers next week to talk about their child's progress in school. I hope the dialog between teachers and parents continues throughout the year. We can always talk about the headlines in Education Week and be glad that we live in Virginia Beach.

Student leaders elected

The student leaders from the Virginia Beach Public school division's nine junior highs and seven senior highs have elected their 1987-88 council of leaders.

Public school notes

The following is information from the Virginia Beach Public Schools office:

Much chicken soup needed

Wall Street

By George T. Stagg

As we move into the month of turkey, dressing and cranberry sauce, we are thankful to have survived the greatest financial crisis in history. October began with the Dow at 2590 and after collapsing 850 points, recovered one third its losses to end just under 2000 on Halloween night.

Like all major calamities, we must now sift through the wreckage to assess the damage and determine, if we can, the underlying causes. Hopefully, we will learn enough to prevent further damage to the economy or a subsequent recession.

Both of the previous worst stock market calamities of the 20th century, 1929 and 1973, were followed by significant rallies after the initial destruction - 50 percent in '29 and well above 50 percent in '73. Assuming a huge rally in the next two months, the big question is, what happens after the bounce? There is no question that individual investors are shell shocked and I wonder if they will shift to less risk strategies and leave the stock market to the big boys with the computers. Maybe yes, maybe no.

Granted, many people fear that this is 1929 all over again, because that is the only model for a comparison to a set-back anywhere near these proportions. Many investors have been forced to liquidate, as margin calls were obviously very heavy, and mutual fund redemptions made heavy calls for cash. Recently we have seen a massive influx into T-Bills and money market funds.

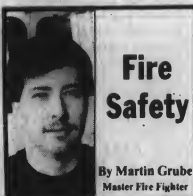

On the other hand, there appears to be another whole class of investor, mostly individuals, who have faced this whole debacle with unerring calm. These investors either missed the market on its way up or are now reentering because they think the market's tumble gives them a second chance to get in before the next leg up.

If these people prevail, they could scare the bear back into hibernation. If they don't, they would illustrate the "greater fool" theory as they learn the difference between owning a stock at 40 on its way to 70 and owning the same stock at 40 on its way to 12.

For now, caution is obviously the word of the day. But, there is lots of value in many blue chip, large cap stocks after the fall as price to earnings ratios and dividend yields have come back into line. The market appears to be trying to stabilize and time should heal many wounds. Yes, the patient is in the IC Unit, and recovering, but there is a lot of chicken soup ahead.

Winter fire safety survey

Fire Safety

By Martin Grube
Master Fire Fighter

I would like to conduct a survey to ascertain how Virginia Beach residents are prepared for the upcoming winter months. Please answer the following questions and send them to: The Virginia Beach Sun, 138 South Rosemont Road, Virginia Beach, Va., 23452 by Nov. 13. The results will be printed in an upcoming article.

- 1) Do you have a smoke detector?
- 2) Test the detector by placing a cotton ball in an ashtray, light it and allow the smoke to drift into the sensing chamber. Did the alarm sound?
- 3) Do you use space heaters?
- 4) Do you use a kerosene heater?
- 5) Where is the closest fire station to your home?
- 6) If you use a fireplace or woodstove, have you had the flue cleaned and checked for this season?
- 7) Have you discussed a plan of action with your family if the smoke detector sounds in the middle of the night?
- 8) Have you discussed a meeting spot somewhere outside the home with the family members where a head count can be taken if the smoke detector sounds?
- 9) What topics would you like to read in this column in the future?

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.

Council backs off hiring consultant

City Council has backed off hiring a consultant to go over its Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance (CZO) until it receives and studies recommendations from the Planning Commission.

Council had considered bringing in a consultant to help in revising the CZO.

At a workshop Monday, councilman Albert Balko said that he did not want a consultant telling him what should be done "in a half hour. I'm not in favor of a consultant."

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that the process will take time and that she would like to have the benefit of hearing the commissioners explain the thinking behind their recommendations. After that, "If we felt we needed further work, a consultant could provide additional help," she said. "At this point," she said, "we would not know what we were asking."

Mayor Robert G. Jones concluded that Council wanted some sort of orientation and a meeting was scheduled with the Planning Commission for Nov. 16 at 9:30 a.m.

The suit was instituted Oct. 23 following the action of the Sussex Board of Supervisors on Oct. 15 to withhold consent for the pipeline route.

On Oct. 29, the Board reconsidered its original decision and granted local consent with the terms that Virginia Beach will pay for the County's loss of tax revenue - $6,000 a year, and within the first year following the completion of the installation of the pipe line, Virginia Beach and the County will enter an agreement to allow the County to develop the pipeline route for a recreational trail. The city also will provide $12,000 for the development of the pipeline property for recreational use.

Sky Watch

A monthly feature prepared by the Science Museum of Virginia

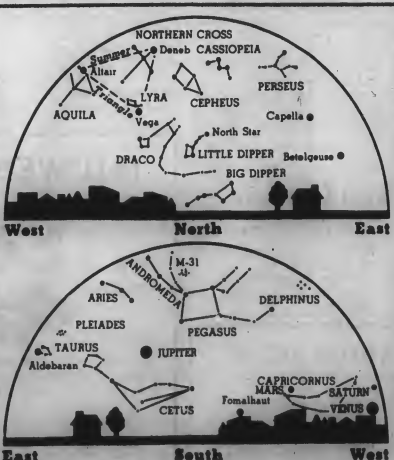

NOVEMBER SKY CHARTS: To use these sky charts, face either north or south and hold the charts directly in front of you with the horizon on the bottom. The charts show the brightest stars and planets between the horizon and the part of the sky directly overhead during the early evening hours this month.

CONSTELLATIONS: Four bright stars that form the Great Square of Pegasus, the flying horse, are visible overhead in the southern sky. Pegasus is galloping through the sky upside down with his hind legs, marked by the constellation Andromeda, stretching up toward the south.

Aldebaran, a red-listed star marking the "bloodshot" eye of Taurus the bull, can be seen in the east. In the northwest sky, look for the three stars that mark one of the summer's brightest star patterns - the Summer Triangle. Vega, the brightest of the three, is found about midway between the horizon and the zenith, while Altair is low and to the west and Deneb is visible high overhead.

PLANETS: Jupiter is in Pisces and can be seen throughout most of the night. Jupiter rises in the east around sunset, moves across the southern sky, and sets in the west around sunrise.

Venus is bright, but very low in the southeast in the early evening. It sets about an hour after sunset.

Saturn is also low in the southwest in the early evening, but is much fainter than Venus.

On November 26, Saturn will be 2 degrees north of Venus. A thin crescent moon will join these two planets on the evenings of November 21 and 22. Mars rises before the sun and can be found in the east in the early morning.

CELESTIAL EVENT: Meteor showers are the focus of this month's celestial events. Two major showers the Taurids and the Leonids, will brighten the November skies. Watch for meteors from the Taurid shower streak through the night sky on November 3. About 15 meteors per hour can be observed from this shower. The best time to view the Leonid meteor shower is during the early morning hours of November 18. These meteors originate from the comet Temple-Tuttle, due to return in 1998. Also falling at a rate of 15 meteors per hour, this huge meteor swarm follows the orbit of the comet.

Youth appreciation Week

The Optimist Club of Central Virginia Beach will be recognizing a young man and woman from each of the Virginia Beach High Schools during "Youth Appreciation Week," Nov. 9 to 16.

Sponsored for more than 50 years by Optimist International, the week recognizes outstanding graduating high school seniors in the community. The central Virginia Beach club adopted this tradition last year.

Those selected by their high schools to be recognized will be honored at an awards breakfast on Wednesday, Nov. 11. One male and one female senior will also be recognized based on the judgement of a panel of citizens, as the two top graduating seniors in Virginia Beach.

Nominations will be accepted until Oct. 9. Selection will be based on the student's demonstration of character, community service, extracurricular activities, scholastic achievement and citizenship.

For more information call Dennis Groth at 340-0175 or 471-4334.

Council defers decision on tinted windows

There may be more to a proposed ordinance on windshield tinting and shading than meets the eye and city council wants to know what that is.

The ordinance, which City Attorney Dale Binson said would bring the city's ordinance into compliance with the State Code, makes it unlawful for any person to operate any motor vehicle upon a highway within the city with colored or tinted film or sunshading material or other colored or non-transparent material on the windshield, front or rear side windows or rear windows of the motor vehicle other than required stickers.

Councilman Harold Heschob said that before considering the ordinance, council should learn the full intent of the legislation. He questioned whether the intent had been to outlaw tinting glass installed by the manufacturer.

He added that tinted smoked glass is a danger to police and is not as "innocuous as it seems." He said that several murders of policemen have been committed by highwaymen under cover of the glass.

Council Monday deferred the ordinance until more information is obtained.

November 30 set for school board interviews

Persons interested in serving on the school board can make their bid on Nov. 30 at 4 p.m. when Council has scheduled the annual hearing for School Board nominees.

Four seats will be available Dec. 31 when the terms expire. However, all the incumbents are eligible for reappointment.

School Board members whose term will expire on Dec. 31 are Robert W. Clyburn, James N. Fletcher, at-large members; and John Fahey, Lynnhaven borough and Laura Tebault, Blackwater borough.

If the manufacturer fails to repair your vehicle satisfactorily your next step is to present the case to a third party arbitration board. Some companies like Ford and Chrysler provide their own resolution boards, while others refer their disputes to the Better Business Bureau's arbitration program. Your particular situation will then be reviewed by a panel and a decision concerning retribution will be made. This third party process may take up to sixty days or more to complete.

If the defect in your automobile is a serious one, the board may rule in your favor, requiring the manufacturer to give you a car of comparable value, or a refund. In other instances, the board may send you back to the repair shop for additional warranted repair work. If your complaint is not considered substantial or has not been properly verified, the board may decide that legal action is not necessary.

Any consumer who is not satisfied with the final decision of the arbitration board has twelve months, from the date of the final action taken by the manufacturer in its dispute settlement procedure, to file suit in court. This is one of the last and most drastic steps you can take. It's always best to give the manufacturer ample opportunity to correct the problem before taking your dispute to an arbitration panel or a court hearing. Most manufacturers will be cooperative and more than willing to attempt to remedy the situation. But, if you are left unsatisfied with the manufacturer's efforts, it's your right to take action, and your responsibility to do it by following the procedures provided by law.

PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, November 10, 1987 at 12:00 Noon in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Princess Anne Courthouse, Virginia Beach, Virginia. A briefing session will be held at 9:00 a.m. in the Planning Department Conference Room, Operations Building. Planning Commission action is not a final determination of the application, but only a recommendation to the City Council as the viewpoint of the Planning Commission. Final determination of the application is to be made by City Council at a later date, after public notice in a newspaper having general circulation within this city.

Those members of the public interested in attending the Public Hearing should be advised that, for reasons the Planning Commission deems appropriate, certain items on the agenda may be heard out of order and that it should not be assumed that the order listed below will be exactly followed during the Public Hearing.

The staff reviews of some or all of the items on this agenda suggest that certain conditions be attached to approval by City Council. However, it should not be assumed that those conditions constitute all the conditions that will ultimately be attached to the project. Staff agencies may impose further conditions and requirements during administration of applicable city ordinances.

Frank Meredith

One Year old Beach baby wins $10,000

Frank Meredith, the one year old son of Marilyn Meredith of Virginia Beach, has won a $10,000 college scholarship in the fourth annual "Adorable Babies Photo Contest," sponsored by Johnson & Johnson Baby Products Company.

Frank, as one of 11 runners-up, also will be featured in the 1988 Adorable Babies Calendar. The grand prize winner received $25,000. Additionally, 100 honorable mention babies each will be awarded $100 U.S. Savings Bonds.

Entries were judged on the photo's adorableness and the charm and cleverness of the caption. The winning caption was, "What do you mean we built the house on the wrong lot?" The winners were selected by The Independent Judging Organization Inc., a subsidiary of Comart Associates, Inc. Details of the 1988 contest will be available early next year. Entry blanks will be available at local food, drug and discount stores.

Costa named Mary Kay sales director

Pauline Costa of Virginia Beach has been appointed to the position of sales director for Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc. Costa, who joined the company in January 1986, will provide leadership, training and management for her unit of beauty consultants. She joins a group of 3,500 professional business women, who as sales directors, assist the efforts of more than 130,000 independent consultants.

In preparation for her new position, Costa attended a week-long training session at Mary Kay's international headquarters in Dallas where she attended classes on product knowledge, sales techniques, business management and fashion trends.

Virginia Museum craft workshop at Virginia Beach Arts Center

The Cultural Arts In Virginia Beach

Craft artist Tricia Pearsall will discuss the techniques, methods, terminology and care of handmade craft objects in a workshop for collectors and admirers on Thursday, Nov. 19 at the Virginia Beach Arts Center.

Pearsall is one of 13 professional artists who present studio workshops through the Virginia Museum's chapter and affiliate program.

The workshop will be presented at the Arts Center's studios from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public. Registration is accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

The day-long workshop will comprise five lecture/demonstrations exploring the mystique of craft media -- ceramics, fiber, wood, glass and metal. Pearsall will focus on the qualities which make handmade objects appealing, such as the materials, the design and the function.

Pearsall is a professional weaver who has served since 1979 on the board of directors of the Hand Workshop of Richmond, for two years as its chairman. Her textile designs have been exhibited widely throughout Virginia, and she has studied weaving and participated in craft workshops in New York, Washington D.C., Tennessee, England and Ecuador.

She has served as curator for several exhibitions, including in 1983 "Southern Imagery and the Crafts Aesthetic" in Richmond. She has also taught at the Hand Workshop.

The workshop was organized by the chapter and affiliate program of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and is funded in part by the Jean Stafford Camp Memorial Fund.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the Virginia Beach Arts Center at 425-0000.

Next Pops concert to feature French music, puppets, holiday boutique

The Virginia Beach Pops presents the third in its series of 1987/88 subscription concerts on Sunday, Nov. 22, at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. at the Pavilion Theater.

Walter Noona will lead the orchestra in a distinctly French program, beginning with the first movement of Mouret's "Suite De Symphonies" and Debussy's "Afternoon of a Fawn." Leonid Keylin, concertmaster, will perform Massenet's "Meditation" from "Thais," and the final portion will close with Saint-Saens' "Marche Militaire Francaise" from the "Algerian Suite."

The center portion of this concert will feature a single work: Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite" which will be enhanced by the appearance of the Spectrum Puppets.

The final portion of these concerts will feature popular French show music: Lerner and Lowe's "Gigi" and selections from "Les Miserables" arranged by Chuck Sayer.

The Virginia Beach Pops League will present its Christmas Boutique, featuring hand-made holiday items, gifts donated from Virginia Beach stores, and original art work for sale at both concerts.

Carlson speaks

The Reverend John Carlson, pastor of the Highland United Methodist Church, Tampa, Florida, will be the speaker for the Spiritual Summit Meetings at the First Colonial Baptist Church, 929 First Colonial Road, beginning Nov. 8. The services will be held each night at 7:30 p.m. and the public is cordially invited.

Beginning on Nov. 9 the Rev. Carlson will hold a morning Bible study, daily, at 10 a.m., at the church. Prefacing the spiritual summit, (a search for revival) the church will hold a men's pre-summit prayer breakfast on Saturday morning, Nov. 7 at 8 a.m. Pancakes will be on the menu. All men interested in revival are invited.

The Christian Life Center will be the scene of the happening. The ladies of the church will sponsor a Pre-Summit Luncheon in the Fellowship Hall of the church at the noon hour. Ladies are invited. The youth prayer and fellowship will be held at 6 p.m. in the evening of Nov. 7. These pre-summit meetings are opportunities for people to pray, fellowship, and meet Rev. Carlson, who will address each group. For more details and information interested parties may call 428-3700.

Museum visited

A tour of the Virginia Marine Science Museum was one of the features of the recent 1987 Southeastern Museums Conference in Hampton.

The theme of the conference was "Building: Blueprints for Success."

Conference participants visited the Marine Science Museum for an afternoon session entitled "Planning Exhibits for New Space."

The session was led by E. Verner Johnson of Boston, Mass., who created the master plan for the museum. His firm, E. Verner Johnson and Associates, also has participated in the planning and design of more than 50 other museums including the Boston Museum of Science.

Hooray! Council approves money for open space

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

One sliver of oceanfront property, a mere .3 acre, has been saved from development at a cost to the city of $1.8 million. The Oceanfront Park Committee raised the additional $600,000 needed to meet the $2.4 million purchase price of the parcel.

A 7-4 vote by city council Monday ended over a year of fund raising, pleadings with the city for financial support and several council actions.

The city's share is being provided by the transfer from the Municipal Facilities Site Acquisition Fund — $1.6 million, and the Lynnhaven Municipal Marina Renovation — $200,000.

John C. Rogers, principal owner of the property which is next door to the Maritime Museum, in a letter dated Nov. 6 to City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck, says that he is sufficiently satisfied that the Oceanfront Park Committee has met its requirements called for under the most recent agreement with city council.

The agreement made the city's contribution contingent upon the Park Committee's raising the $600,000 by Dec. 1.

Councilman Robert Festress, who has supported the project from its inception, said that the Committee has received $266,000 in contributions from the public and two large contributions of $150,000 each from Rogers and an unnamed donor. The remain-

No impact for road bond in first year

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

The $8 million road bond authority which Virginia Beach voters approved in the Nov. 3 referendum will not impact the real estate rate the first year, according to Assistant City Manager E. D. Block.

He said, however, that the $8 million a year spending over an additional eight years may require some adjustment. He said the revenue implications would have to be addressed during the Capital Improvement Program (CIP) update in the fall of 1988.

Ironically, voters denied the city council an increase in its authority to borrow more money without voter approval, which it wanted, and voted to retain the $8 million road bond authority, which the majority of city council had agreed not to use.

Bayside program on AIDS

The Bayside Area Library will host a program on AIDS on Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 7 p.m. The program is being presented by the Tidewater Chapter of the American Red Cross. A film presentation will cover the virus, individuals, and the community. A representative from the Red Cross will be there to discuss and answer questions on AIDS. Registration is required. HOV survey to be conducted

A survey will be conducted to determine what it will take for more Norfolk and Virginia Beach area commuters to use High Occupancy Vehicle (HOV) lanes on Route 44, according to a press release.

HOV lanes are restricted to three or more people in a vehicle during rush hour.

Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT) officials asked Tidewater Regional Transit (TRT) to conduct the survey. According to the release, C.A. Nash, VDOT Suffolk district engineer, said that the prevention of future gridlock depends on the HOV system working.

"There simply will not be enough highway capacity in the future if the public cannot accept the HOV concept," Nash said. HOV lanes on Route 44 were the first phase of the system-wide approach, with the I-64 reversible and diamond lanes scheduled for construction in 1990 acting as the second phase.

The reversible HOV lanes will help reduce traffic congestion in Hampton Roads. The reversible lanes would begin in the median of I-64 west of the I-564/Granby Street interchange in Norfolk and stretch to the bridge over the eastern branch of the Elizabeth River. The lanes would be separated from other travel lanes by concrete barriers, with ramps connecting the reversible lanes with the conventional lanes. HOV traffic will use these lanes to go west in the morning and east in the evening.

Since the HOV lanes opened a year ago on the expressway, HOV ridership has doubled. But transportation officials want to see HOV ridership increase even more and are taking steps to make HOV lanes more convenient for commuters on the expressway.

"Public acceptance of the HOV concept takes time," Nash said. "We recognize that everyone cannot carpool. But we want to find out from the public what the barriers are to carpooling and what we can do to remove them."

Dates for the survey have not been announced.

Mary K. Finn, a Trantwood teacher, gets $25,313 McAuliffe fellowship

Mary K. Finn, a Virginia Beach teacher, has been awarded a federally-funded Christa McAuliffe Fellowship for 1987-88 to pursue an innovative special project.

The Trantwood Elementary School teacher was awarded $25,313 for a project that includes teaching creative writing to kindergartners. Finn plans to introduce kindergarten teachers to new ideas for teaching writing, and will organize staff development training to help teachers put the new ideas into action. She plans to produce a handbook of writing activities that are designed to correlate with kindergarten curriculum.

The fellowships have been awarded for the first time this year in honor of the late Christa McAuliffe, the teacher/astronaut who lost her life in the explosion of the Challenger space shuttle in 1986. One hundred and fifteen fellowships have been awarded to teachers across the nation.

The $2 million Christa McAuliffe Fellowship Fund is administered by the U.S. Department of Education.

Election follow-up

Stallings holds on; Holland, Croshaw coast to victories

By Valerie A. Olander
Staff Writer

Virginia Beach Democrats had a good day at the polls Tuesday.

In a close race for the 8th District State Senate, Democrat Moody E. "Sonny" Stallings Jr. held a small edge to unseat the 16-year incumbent, Republican Joe Canada Jr. Louis M. Pace, running on the Independent ticket fell far behind with only five percent of the vote.

The margins in the Stallings-Canada race were close. Stallings had 48 percent of the votes while Canada followed shortly behind with 47 percent.

Under Virginia law, Canada could have requested a recount since he lost by only one percent of the vote. He didn't.

In other Virginia Beach races, Democrat Sen. Clarence A. Holland took a landslide reelection victory over Rae Le Sene, an Independent. Holland outpolled Le Sene, 77 percent to 23 percent.

Delegate Glenn R. Croshaw, a Democrat, easily won reelection with 71 percent of the vote over Darrell Hughes' 29 percent.

The fight for the 8th District seat was a long drawn out campaign. Canada held the seat since 1972. Reports of Canada's business dealings with a convicted embezzler, Clyde Pitchford, convicted cocaine dealer, Donald Kera, and Landbank Equity Corp., a mortgage company that is the target of federal fraud investigation resulted in some negative publicity for Canada.

Democrats also alleged that Canada skirted federal election laws during the 2nd District congressional race, in which he lost to Democrat Owen B. Pickett last year.

Commonwealth's Attorney Paul A. Sciortino also questioned

Canada's time ran out; Stallings facing tough road

By Valerie A. Olander
Staff Writer

Virginia Beach voters seemed reluctant, according to one observer, to cast their ballots for incumbent Joe Canada Jr., allowing Moody E. "Sonny" Stallings Jr. to pull slightly ahead in the 8th District state Senate race.

Entering the race, Stallings was considered an underdog but after the long mudslinging campaign he ended up edging one percentage point past Canada.

"Canada was due to get the ax; it didn't matter if he was a Republican or a Democrat." — Dr. Martin Sheffer, ODU political science professor and political analyst

According to Dr. Martin Sheffer, a Political Science professor at Old Dominion University and local political analyst, the final blow to Canada's chances for the Senate seat was the final realization of the voters that Canada has made "no accomplishment as a state Senator."

Sheffer said he began his political career at New York City's Tammany Hall, the name of the Madison Avenue offices of the Democratic party machine that dominated that city after about 1840 until its decline in the early 1940s. While there, Sheffer said, he learned "real-life politics from real-life politicians." Sheffer was also an aide to Robert Kennedy when he was a New York senator and worked on Kennedy's presidential campaign in 1968, the year Kennedy was assassinated by Sirhan Sirhan.

Sheffer says that the publicity Canada received was "questionable and unethical" but it was not the main reason behind Canada's defeat.

"The voters finally asked themselves, 'What has Canada actually done?'" Sheffer said. "Canada was due to get the ax; it didn't even matter if he was a Democrat or a Republican."

"Canada is a political opportunist," Sheffer continued. "Every opportunist will turn on his constituents looking for a higher office and he was defeated in each example."

Sheffer is referring to last year's 2nd District congressional race in which Canada lost to Democrat Owen B. Pickett.

Sheffer says, "A major change is taking place in the country and American voters are not taking as seriously an incumbent guaranteed election."

Stallings will have a rough road ahead of him filling the Senate seat.

According to Sheffer, Stallings' campaign for the state senate seat centered around "effective leadership."

"He should feel obligated to put his money where his mouth is," Sheffer said. "If he fails to produce," Sheffer warns, "the District will take retribution against him and his head will be on the chopping board."

Sheffer attributes the re-elections of Democratic Senator Clarence A. Holland and Democratic Delegate Glenn R. Croshaw to name and personality recognition.

"Holland and Croshaw were actually running unopposed," Sheffer said.

"Intuitive common sense said not to waste a vote on someone that can't win," he said. "To vote for the other candidate would be to throw away a vote or not cast a vote at all."

Sheffer said the passing of the referendum for elected school boards officials was "disappointing."

"Most people who voted against the lottery will sooner or later be participating in the lottery . . . the issue had nothing to do with morality or gambling. Church raffles and bingos are also considered gambling." — Dr. Martin Sheffer

"With elected school boards, all loss of compromise value is gone. Every group will be trying to sell their issue," he said.

Sheffer also speculates that "the Evangelical churches are going to put an effort to get on

Bonds, board

Three Virginia Beach referendums were passed at the polls. Recreation bonds were approved, increasing real estate tax four percent to build three recreation centers throughout the city and extending an existing center. The $32.85 million bond issue passed by a large margin.

Virginia Beach voters also supported an elected school board with limited taxing power and city legislation to protect trees.

Sciortino firing

Chief Deputy Commonwealth's Attorney Robert J. Humphreys, a Republican, was fired by Commonwealth's Attorney Paul A. Sciortino.

The firing of the six-year prosecutor set off bickering in the 8th District state Senate race.

Sciortino, elected as a Republican, switched recently to the Democratic party backing newly elected Democratic state Senator Moody E. "Sonny" Stallings Jr.

The Sussex County Board of Supervisors reversed its decision and will approve the Lake Gaston pipeline project.

The resolution came after the Virginia Beach City Council terminated the court case and agreed to pay $6,000 toward all future tax bills and an additional $12 thousand to develop the pipeline route.

HOV: Here to stay

High Occupancy Vehicle (HOV) lanes were opened a year ago and according to a press release from the Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT) ridership has doubled. Although some commuters using HOV can take the fast lane home, conventional traffic is still bumper-to-bumper.

VDOT officials have asked Tidewater Regional Transit (TRT) to conduct a survey among local commuters to decide what it will take to get them to use the HOV lanes.

Some reasons that a person would rather decide to face the stressful stop-and-go traffic are the inconvenience of waiting for other people that are car pooling with them, or making others wait for them. Another problem of not using HOV lanes is not knowing anyone in your immediate neighborhood with whom to carpool. So driving yourself may seem to be more convenient, that is until you hit the rush hour traffic.

In reality, car pooling is the most efficient way to solve the rush hour crunch. There is limited space available to construct new highways so commuters must learn to accept HOV as the way of the future.

HOV is going to be the only way to possibly keep traffic from being congested. It seems HOV is a concept with which we are going to have to live.

Some people complain that HOV lanes aren't effective as they should be because the left lane, the HOV lane, may go faster but in the end the car sometimes has to cross four lanes of bumper-to-bumper traffic to reach their exit. And this isn't an easy task during rush hour.

C. A. Nash, VDOT Suffolk district engineer, announced at a recent public hearing of VDOT that the department is taking steps to improve HOV lanes, such as opening a temporary ramp on the Route 44 and I-64 interchange. The opening of this ramp in December will allow HOV traffic to get on I-264 without having to cross the four lanes of traffic between Witchduck Road and Newtown Road.

Another improvement the VDOT wants complete by January of 1988 is widening the ramp from Route 44 east to Witchduck Road and adding two additional toll booths that will help move traffic through the ramp faster.

The reversible HOV lanes will also help congested traffic on I-64. The reversible lanes would begin in the median of I-64 west of the I-564/Granby Street interchange in Norfolk and stretch to the bridge over the eastern branch of the Elizabeth River. These lanes would be separated from other lanes by concrete barriers with ramps connecting the reversible lanes with the conventional lanes. The reversible lanes will serve the HOV traffic going west in the morning and east in the evening.

HOV lanes are working to speed traffic through rush hour, the minor problems are being worked on, the VDOT is trying to solve any problems concerning HOV and HOV seems to be working. HOV is going to be the only way to possibly keep traffic from being congested. It seems HOV is a concept with which we are going to have to live. — V.A.O.

Politicking isn't needed in schools

Although Virginia Beach passed the referendum for an elected school board with limited taxing power, the issue must get an approval stamp by the General Assembly in Richmond.

Supporters for the elected school board say that elections would solve the problem of cronyism, but in actuality an elected school board could cause a lot of chaos.

The Virginia Beach school board could turn into political debates among partisan members if elected. Most disputes among elected school board members would be one-sided and create unresolved problems within the school system.

Each special interest group will want appointment to the board and will want their concerns upheld by the board. It would be virtually impossible for every group to sell their issue.

In elected school boards, the most qualified will not always be elected, but rather the most popular. Elected members may be business-minded instead of school-minded.

Politicking is not needed in schools. Virginia Beach already has a very good school system. The present appointed school board is much more organized and less political.

The state has never allowed school board elections and it is rather unlikely that the General Assembly will give its approval. — V.O.

Special Report

Protection against pest con artists

Question: A neighbor of mine recently lost a lot of money to a disreputable pest control company. Many of us are retired and want to protect ourselves from similar con artists. Can you offer some advice?

Answer: Con artists often make their fortunes by preying upon elderly people, using smooth talk and high pressure sales tactics to make a quick sale. Be cautious if an exterminator knocks on your door and offers to inspect your house for free. On some occasions, con artists have been known to secure permission to inspect a home and then crawl under the porch or house to look for bugs. What you may not realize however, is that the inspector may have a match-box of live termites in his pocket. He will tell you that your house needs to be exterminated, whether it is infested with bugs or not.

Some pest control companies target elderly people by looking in the phone book for very traditional first names, or by driving through neighborhoods to spot older cars in the driveway. Elderly people are often considered easy victims because many tend to be more trusting and accommodating. Some people have lost substantial amounts of money which was paid for work that never needed to be done in the first place. It's good to be able to place your trust in someone, but take some precautions first. Find out if who you are dealing with is honest and will give you good service for a fair price.

If your house needs to be exterminated, or if someone tells you that your house needs to be exterminated, get several estimates from different companies before you agree to have work done. Get each inspector to quote you a price in writing. After you have received at least three estimates, take your time to compare them and make your decision. It's safest to deal with a reputable exterminating company that you are familiar with. If you are unfamiliar with a specific company, ask them for references of satisfied customers. You can also call the State Office of Consumer Affairs toll free at 1-800-552-9963 (or in Richmond at 786-2042) to see if any consumers have filed complaints against the company.

Never sign a contract for extermination work without first reviewing and understanding all of the terms of the agreement. If the pest control company is legitimate, they won't mind waiting an extra day or two while you think over their offer. A salesman who tries to pressure you into making a decision on the spot usually has something to hide. It's also a good idea to wait until the work has been satisfactorily completed before you make the full payment. Whenever you do business with someone, whether it's an exterminator or a contracting company, it's always best to protect yourself by exercising a certain amount of caution.

"Consumer Comments" is a weekly feature that provides educational information on consumer issues and concerns. Address your questions or inquiries to the State Office of Consumer Affairs, Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, Post Office Box 1163, Richmond, Virginia 23209, or call toll free at 1-800-552-9963 (in Richmond call 786-2042). Driving at the Beach

Driving conditions in Virginia Beach may not be considered ideal. There is limited road space and congested traffic. But in other cities across the country that bumper-to-bumper traffic could be worse.

In one particular city with which I am familiar, Detroit, where I am originally from, you are dealing with the same stressful stop and go traffic. What makes traffic here even worse is that you are dealing with the majority of drivers who must get their license from a Cracker Jack box.

In Detroit, the Secretary of State sends your license in a caramel colored envelope. In the corner of your driver's license, where your picture should be, stands a scrawny freckled-faced kid in a sailor outfit and stamped across the license is a bright red stamp that says, "Surprise."

What makes traffic here even worse is that you are dealing with the majority of drivers who must get their license from a Cracker Jack box.

The majority of Detroit drivers are surprised when they do finally receive this in the mail and realize that they actually did pass the standard driving test.

The unwritten laws that every Detroit driver must follow are quite simple.

First, it is mandatory to drive 10 miles per hour faster than the speed limit. This particular piece of information is very important if you want to refrain from being rear ended.

The speed limit in Detroit also represents the I.Q. of the majority of drivers on the road.

Another helpful hint is to never, ever use your blinkers. The idea is to surprise the person behind you. It is helpful if you don't brake until immediately before you are going to turn. This helps to keep the driver behind you alert and on their toes.

One thing Virginians have that Detroit doesn't is left turn lights. In Detroit you must sit and wait and hopefully by the time the light is somewhere between yellow and red you can try to squeak past the oncoming traffic. When making this left turn you must also be aware of other drivers making the same left turn from the right lane.

Another helpful hint is to never, ever use your blinkers. The idea is to surprise the person behind you. It is also helpful if you don't brake until immediately before you are going to turn. This helps to keep the driver behind you alert and on their toes.

One thing Detroit has that Virginia doesn't have too many of is pot holes. These fifty little things can swallow your car if you are not careful.

I guess the long winter creates a lot of wear and tear on the roads in Detroit. The salt on the winter roads also helps to rust your car very quickly. To my amazement, I have not seen one rusted 1971 blue Impala with a green passenger side door.

I guess Virginia Beach is a little slower paced and has more organized road situations but I still can not believe that someone can drive in the same lane for more than two minutes. Weaving in and out of traffic is much more fun!

Building schools together

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

American Education Week was initiated after World War I draft boards discovered that about 25 percent of draftees were illiterate and about 29 percent were physically unfit. In 1919, the American Legion, the National Education Association, and the U.S. Office of Education discussed launching an educational campaign to solicit the public support essential to correcting such deficiencies. As a result, a series of conferences that began in 1920 led to a plan for an annual nationwide observance honoring education in the United States. In 1921, the first observance of American Education Week took place.

Early American Education Week programs featured daily topics based on fundamental educational purposes and objectives. From 1929 through 1968, representatives of the co-sponsoring organizations chose a general theme with supporting subtopics. Beginning in 1969, the co-sponsors chose a general theme of national concern for each year.

Since its inception 66 years ago, American Education Week has continued to grow. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers, now The National PTA, became an official co-sponsor in 1938 and the National School Boards Association joined the ranks of co-sponsoring organizations in 1980.

Today, the observance of American Education Week serves to increase public understanding and appreciation of the nation's schools, to encourage parents to visit schools, and to build civic and community support to improve education. Parent groups, especially the PTAs, provide a vital link between the school and community.

Most parents whose children are in the public schools are aware of how hard school employees work to prepare all children for tomorrow's challenges. Parents also need to be aware that this work can be further strengthened by their active involvement. American Education Week is the perfect opportunity for PTAs to encourage parents and those adults without school-age children to learn more about their community's public schools.

NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell writes, "Educational excellence begins at the local, individual school level. That's what American Education Week is all about — building community-wide support for local public schools. Public schools belong to all of us. They are a national treasure and a national resource. But our schools must be nurtured if they are to continue providing the excellence for our national foundation for the national

Policymakers are in the driver's seat

Wall Street

By
George T. Stagg

The pivotal events just ahead are probably going to be political, rather than economic. Much of the market's recent decline had its roots in political uncertainty centering around fears of higher interest rates and inflation.

It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of what policymakers in the U.S., Germany and Japan accomplish over the near term. A coordinated rate cut is essential, and the more aggressive the better. The world markets need a discount rate cut of at least one full point in Germany and Japan and half a point in the United States.

And time is running out on a bi-partisan program to reduce the budget deficit. It's a real horror story to think the opposition will risk a collapse of our entire economy in an effort to create an issue that will give them the White House next November.

Washington is unlikely to give us a positive surprise in regard to the deficit problem. Chances are remote that they will come up with a larger cut than is needed or expected or that the cuts will mean in a very soothing way. We will hear promises of things to come later, but we have grown skeptical about future promises.

A great deal is at stake and it depends, to a very large degree, on what compromises can be reached between President Reagan and Congress. Following the recent collapse in the market, the chance that our policymakers have been frightened into an acceptable solution seems reasonably good, but, unfortunately, the chance that they need further proof that bold action is required also exists.

There is a substantial difference between the priorities of Wall Street and Washington. And, Washington moves much slower than our electronic-age markets prefer. These factors may be very relevant in the on-going talks between the White House and Congress. Very little sand remains in the hourglass.

City's fire department purchases Telesquirts

Fire Safety

By Martin Grube
Master Fire Fighter

As the summer of 1987 came to a close, the Virginia Beach Fire Department took possession of two new fire trucks. These fire trucks are the first of their kind to be purchased by the city's fire department.

Better known by the firefighters as Telesquirts, these new trucks cost $274,500 each. Each truck is equipped with a water pump that can flow 1,500 gallons of water per minute. The ladder mounted on top of the apparatus can extend to 50 feet in height and can flow anywhere from 300 to 1,000 gallons of water per minute out the nozzle.

The idea behind the Telesquirt is that the chassis is the same size as a pump. It can maneuver through narrow streets and get close to a burning structure. The 50 foot ladder tower can knock down most of the flames in reasonably quick time. Then the smaller hoses located on the truck can be used to fully extinguish the fire.

The two Telesquirts are assigned to the Green Run fire station (#18) and to the Chesapeake Beach fire station (#4). The Norfolk Fire Department has utilized Telesquirts for years and has had success with the units. Two additional Telesquirts have been ordered and they are tentatively scheduled to be assigned to the College Park fire station and the Seastack fire station.

Building a fire truck takes months and sometimes several manufacturers take part in the construction of the same unit. For example on the new Telesquirts, the chassis was built in Midvale, Ohio at the Duplex Corporation; the truck was then taken to Saint Joes, Missouri where the Telesquirt ladder was placed on the chassis. The final stage of construction was the pump, cabinets and red lights which was completed by the Grumman Co. in Rosnoke, Va.

Drop by and visit your professional firefighters at Company #4 and Company #18 and take a look at the new Telesquirts. Ask for a pamphlet on fire safety and don't forget to test your smoke detector. Think fire safety; your life may depend on it.

Seniors take advantage of driving program

By Gordon Morton

Special To The Sun
October set records for AARP's 55 Alive/Mature Driving Program in Virginia Beach.

Two classes were taught by volunteer instructor, Wally Havens, at the Kempsville Recreation Center. Jim Stancil, coordinator for the driving program, taught a class of "Telephone Pioneers" at the Robins Corner Telephone Building. Another class was taught at Galilee Episcopal Church at the beach by John Van Hoose. Over 75 persons received their certificate for completing the course.

Classes scheduled for November/December:

Nov. 4 and 5, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Bow Creek Recreation Center; Nov. 12 and 13, 12 noon to 4 p.m., Bow Creek Recreation Center; Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Kempsville Green Recreation; Dec. 9 and 10, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Bow Creek Recreation Center; and Dec. 12 and 19, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Bow Creek Recreation Center.

The Dec. 12 & 19 class is scheduled for Saturday so that people who work will be able to participate without taking time off work.

For information on classes at Bow Creek call Jim Stancil, 497-

For classes at Kempsville call Wally Havens 479-4481.

If your woman's club, men's club or church group is interested in scheduling a class at your facility, AARP will furnish all materials and a qualified instructor. The cost of the course is $7. Insurance companies must give you a discount on completion of the course.

AARP would also like to present to your group a program on "Walking Safety" and "Seat Belt Safety." These are approximately 30-minute programs and are available by calling Jim Stancil 497-0464.

Budget proposed; revenues set aside

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

City manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck suggested Monday that city council be more careful about setting aside too much of the operating revenues before getting into the budget process. He proposed instead that the city consider setting priorities.

The city has been setting aside part of the operating revenues for capital projects. Councilman John D. Moss has proposed even more set asides for the operating budget.

He has proposed that one percent of anticipated revenues be designated annually to the recently established Land Acquisition Special Project account as a cash contribution, that two percent of anticipated revenues be designated to a new account identified as Council Emergent Requirements to be used to respond to requirements which come up during public hearings and council discussions and that 15 percent of new revenue growth be designated for pay-as-you-go capital improvements over and above the base in the prior year.

Moss has also recommended a change in the formula for cost-of-living pay adjustments, the provision of office space and staff assistance for council members and for more information to be included in the budget.

Muehlenbeck said that more and more impact is being placed on the operating budget and the council is talking about increasing that.

This year,
one million Americans will learn they have arthritis.

You could be one of them

Early morning stiffness, swelling around joints, and recurring pain are all danger signs of arthritis. If left untreated, joint damage may develop that cannot be reversed. You don't have to run that risk.

Fiction vs. Fact

Unfortunately, many people still believe arthritis is just a part of growing older, and that it can't be treated. Others seek home remedies that leave them disappointed and without relief.

The truth is, arthritis affects 36 million Americans. It is the nation's most common chronic disease, and if treated properly, it is possible to avoid unnecessary pain and suffering.

Your best defense is education and early detection.

Join us at 7 p.m. on November 23 for a free Arthritis Awareness Program. Medical professionals will speak on types of arthritis, treatment, therapeutic exercises and available services. Don't just ignore arthritis; chances are, it won't ignore you.

Chancellor's award for Wei-Ming Mei

Virginia Beach resident Elizabeth Wei-Ming Mei, 18, is the recipient of a Chancellor's Award for the 1987-88 academic year at the University of Missouri-Kansas City (UMKC).

Mei, who attended Green Run High School, intends to study in UMKC's six-year Dental School program, which students enter directly from high school. Mei is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chui Mei of Orchard Lane.

Chancellor's awards recognize students with exceptional creativity or talent that may be developed through further study in one of the 115 degree programs offered at UMKC. Out-of-state award recipients have the non-resident fee differential waived, and all recipients have half of their in-state fees paid by UMKC. In-state fees are $49.60 per credit hour for freshmen.

To be eligible for one of these awards, students must be first-time entering freshmen who ranked in the top 25 percent of their graduating class or scored in the top 25 percent on the ACT admission test. If the award recipients maintain a 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale, they may renew these awards for up to four years of college courses.

Turner elected to student government

Michelle Dawn Turner, a graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, has been elected to represent residents of historic McDowell Columns in the Student Government Association. McDowell Columns is a facility for 50 women.

"McDowell Columns is an honor residence hall for women," said Dean of Students Clayton Lewis. "Women will be invited to live in McDowell Columns upon recommendation of the faculty and staff," Lewis added.

Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell R. Turner, Jr., Timberwood Lane, is studying business administration at Chowan College. She is a member of Holy Family Catholic Church.

Chowan is a two-year residential college with 900 students who represent 20 states and 14 countries. Over 40 associate degree programs are offered. Chowan is one of seven institutions of higher education owned and operated by the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina.

Junior Achievement earns summit award

Junior Achievement of Greater Hampton Roads Inc., which operates economic education programs locally and in Virginia Beach, earned a summit award at a recent regional meeting of junior achievement executives.

The award recognizes the Norfolk-based operation as one of the top 15 franchises among 80 offices in junior achievement's Atlantic coast region. The award was reportedly based on financial solvency, program and management skill, community involvement and growth in the last year.

Lee E. Carney is head of Junior Achievement of Greater Hampton Roads, which employs seven people. More than 4,800 students fifth through 12 grades in this area participate in applied economics, project business, business basics and other company programs, according to a company release.

Goodman Segar Hogan appoints two locals

Gerald Ciatko has been appointed sales associate for Goodman Segar Hogan, Inc. His responsibilities include retail office and land sales throughout Hampton Roads.

Mark Kersey has been named office leasing associate and is now responsible for leasing office space on the peninsula. Kersey is a recent graduate of Old Dominion University.

Both men are Virginia Beach residents.

J.M. Tull Scholarship given to Walter

Jennifer Laine Walter of Virginia Beach was recently awarded the J. M. Tull Scholarship to complete her studies at Presbyterian College.

A rising junior majoring in biology, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Walter of 60 Bucknall Circle.

In making the announcement, Financial Aid Director Judi F. Gillespie said Jennifer is one of 10 PC students to be named a Tull Scholar. She said the award is normally given to rising juniors for superior academic performance and leadership potential. It can be renewed the senior year if the student maintains a 3.00 grade point ratio for all completed work.

The Tull Foundation of Atlanta established the scholarship to honor the memory of Joseph McKeehan Tull, founder of the J. M. Tull Metal and Supply Co. and Tull Foundation which supports charitable, youth and educational work throughout the southeast.

4-H achievement award winners

Virginia Beach 4-H club member Kimberlee Banks was one of four horse project achievement award winners honored at a recent luncheon at the Boat's Head Inn in Charlottesville, Va.

She received a state medallion, a plaque and a $75 scholarship to the State 4-H Club Congress. The annual horse project awards are based on the state 4-H horse achievement record book program which documents the member's accomplishments in the areas of leadership, development, citizenship, horse science and horsemanship.

The program is open to all Virginia 4-H horse project members. For more information call the Virginia Beach 4-H office at 427-4617.

$20,000 grant for energy conservation

The city has been awarded a $20,000 grant from the Commonwealth's Department of Mines, Minerals and Energy to investigate energy conservation options and long-range planning at the Municipal Center.

The study will cost $55,000 and will analyze retention/expansion of the central plant system and the creation of zones or decentralized systems. The Municipal Center, excluding the School Administration building, has a total of 390,000 square feet of office space and is projected to increase to 829,000 square feet by 2010. A key element of the expansion, according to the staff, includes a central heating and cooling system. The study will be used to develop a master plan for the centralized heating and cooling system.

The study also would include energy conservation opportunities and development of a cogeneration energy facility.

The funds for the $33,000 match will be transferred from within the Department of General Services in "in-kind" services.

Maguire Group Inc., a $40 million per year international architectural/engineering/planning firm with 13 domestic offices, has announced the relocation of Peter O. Tacelli, P. E., to the firm's Mid-Atlantic Regional Engineering Office in Virginia Beach.

Tacelli, a vice president and senior project manager for Maguire's New Britain, CT office, has been with the company for the past 24 years and is moving to Virginia Beach to head up the firm's local transportation group.

Tacelli's experience has included the management and supervision of numerous complex highway and transportation related facilities. He recently completed an assignment as the Project Director for the $100 million Improvement to Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks, CT. Notable projects that Mr. Tacelli will direct out of the Virginia Beach office include the $50 million Military Highway Improvements Project and the $200 million proposed Southeastern Expressway Project.

Environmental quality coordinator named

William J. Whitney, Jr., former Virginia Beach chief of comprehensive planning, has been named Environmental Quality Coordinator for the City.

Recently assuming the position, Whitney becomes the first coordinator in this newly funded position. Environmental issues he will be concerned with include: shoreline protection, erosion and sedimentation control, tree protection, aesthetics and visual pollution, noise pollution, environmental restoration, air standards, water quality, and any environmental issue which affects the general health of the community.

In December 1986, an Environmental Quality Task Force recommended that a coordinator be hired as a "one point contact" to handle the increasing number of environmental issues in Virginia Beach. City council approved funding for the position and a committee comprised of private citizens and city employees was appointed to screen applicants.

Whitney was selected from a field of 65 applicants in a search that began in June.

He has a master's degree in urban and regional planning from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and came to the city in 1975 as an environmental planner. Since that time he has served as the senior environmental planner and most recently chief of Comprehensive Planning. Whitney is also an adjunct assistant professor of Urban Studies at Old Dominion University.

Bandy appointed as vice-president

William H. Bandy, a resident of Virginia Beach, has been appointed vice president of Virginia Beach Federal Savings and Loan Association. The announcement was made by William L. Owens, president of the firm.

"Bill has made a substantial contribution in his three years with the Association," Owens said. "He is an expert manager who has greatly increased the productivity in two departments of our firm."

Bandy currently serves as manager of Virginia Beach Federal's construction loans department. His responsibilities include the origination, underwriting and administration of construction loans, with a portfolio of approximately $40 million, and overseeing the four-member department.

Prior to his 1986 appointment as construction loan manager, Bandy established and managed the REO and collections department of the Association. Prior to receiving an M.B.A. in finance from William and Mary, he served as a commercial bank examiner with the Federal Reserve Bank in Richmond.

Virginia Beach Federal Savings and Loan Association, located in Virginia Beach, Virginia, is a 51-year-old firm providing full financial service to customers in the immediate area and across the nation.

Stoke named branch manager for IBM

Virginia Beach resident Warren W. "Woody" Stoke has been named branch manager of IBM's South-West Marketing Division office in Norfolk.

Stoke is returning to the state where he began his IBM career in 1968 as a systems engineer trainee in Roanoke. His most recent assignment was as regional manager in Overland Park, Kansas.

Stoke holds bachelor's degrees in mathematics and physics from Lynchburg College and did graduate work at Texas A & M University. He served as a systems engineer and marketing representative in Roanoke until 1974, when he joined IBM's Manufacturing Industry Staff in San Jose, California. He then went to Seattle, Washington, as a marketing manager in the General Systems Division. In 1979 he became program manager, cooperative marketing, and a year later was named manager of sales operations, General Systems Division headquarters.

In 1981 he was named branch manager at Akron, Ohio, in 1983 Lynchburg College and did graduate work at Texas A & M University. He served as a systems engineer Canada's campaign financing and switched to a Democrat from a Republican.

Canada's loss is critical locally and statewide to the Republican Party. Canada represented one of nine GOP senators and was second in seniority among the Republicans. Canada is also the only Republican east of Richmond.

Stallings even won in precincts that Canada outpolled Pickett in the congressional race last year, such as Green Run and Kingston.

Stallings won in most precincts with the exception of Alanton and Great Neck.

ceives it, not many will show up for Bingo on Wednesday night and the collection boxes will suffer," he said.

"What it comes down to is who gets the profit and the church would rather get the profit," he said.

State legislature will decide what the lottery funds will be used for.

"It's only a guess at this point, that the profit will be compromised and the funds will be spread out to improve roads, build schools, increase teacher's salaries and to help Virginia Beach with the problem of water supply."

Sheffer said, "I hope it will do amazingly well."

NOTICE OF

PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, November 10, 1987 at 12:00 Noon in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Princess Anne Courthouse, Virginia Beach, Virginia. A briefing session will be held at 9:00 a.m. in the Planning Department Conference Room, Operations Building. Planning Commission action is not a final determination of the application, but only a recommendation to the City Council as the viewpoint of the Planning Commission. Final determination of the application is to be made by City Council at a later date, after public notice in a newspaper having general circulation within the city.

Those members of the public interested in attending the Public Hearing should be advised that, for reasons the Planning Commission deems appropriate, certain items on the agenda may be heard out of order and that it should not be assumed that the order listed below will be exactly followed during the Public Hearing.

The staff reviews of some or all of the items on this agenda suggest that certain conditions be attached to approval by City Council. However, it should not be assumed that those conditions constitute all the conditions that will ultimately be attached to the project. Staff agencies may impose further conditions and requirements during administration of applicable city ordinances.

Daughters of Revolution will meet

The Lynnhaven Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet on Saturday, Nov. 14 at 10 a.m. at 2216 Parkside Court. Hostessing the meeting will be Mrs. Robert D. McCrary and Mrs. Nevelyn Stark.

The guest speaker at the meeting will be Raymond Lackore, commander of the Green Run High School Naval Junior ROTC Unit.

An outstanding cadet of the Green Run High School NJROTC Unit is the recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution ROTC medal which is presented annually by the Lynnhaven Parish Chapter.

The academic achievement of the NJROTC squad members recently earned Green Run High School the ranking of Naval Honor School. It is the first school in Hampton Roads to be designated.

Call Mrs. McCrary at 481-3360 or Mrs. Stark at 468-5046 for reservations.

Veteran's Day

We're proud to honor all the men and women who took time out of their lives to serve in our armed forces, and especially all the Veterans in our area who are our friends, relatives, neighbors and customers. May we never overlook and always remember the important contribution they've made to America and Democracy.

"The following businesses proudly salute you."

der of the money is in pledges.

Voting against the transfer of funds for the project were Councilman John D. Moss and Councilwomen Reba McClanahan, Barbara Henley and Nancy Parker.

The same four voted against the agreement giving the Park Committee until Dec. 1 to raise the money.

At that time the vote was 6-4; Councilman Albert Balko was absent.

Council first approved the funding proposal for the park, which has since become known as the Maritime Museum Open Space, on May 11 by a vote of 7-4. Dissenting were Councilmen John D. Moss and Albert Balko and Councilwomen Reba McClanahan and Nancy Parker.

Council had previously voted against participating in the purchase. The committee was given a Sept. 1 deadline. When the Committee failed to meet the deadline for raising the $600,000, council took no action to extend the deadline. Instead a new agreement with a Dec. 1 deadline was considered and turned down by a 6-5 vote. Dissenting were Councilmen Moss and Balko, Vice Mayor Meyera Oberdorff and Councilwomen Barbara Henley, Reba McClanahan and Nancy Parker. By that time the city had used the $1.8 million allocated for the project to the new jail addition.

The agreement with the new deadline was later approved by a 6-4 vote when Balko was absent. The city made the funds available Monday by a vote of 7-4.

Henley said that when she voted in favor of the project, the Committee had been given a Sept. 1 deadline. She said that she felt that if the public responded by raising the money by Sept. 1 it would be like a referendum and would show a broad base of support.

Park supporters originally had said that there was no time to place the issue on the ballot on Nov. 3, but as it turned out there would have been time, Henley said. The fact that much of the $600,000 comes from two donors, Henley said, indicates that the project did not have broad support and that $1.8 million was "a lot of money for a small piece of property."

She also pointed out that the issue was brought back to council by Fentress and Councilman Harold Heischouer although rules traditionally required that only those on the predominant side of a question bring back an issue.

Moss said that he had consistently felt that the project was not the highest and best use for $1.8 million.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan, who, along with Moss and Parker has consistently voted against the city's financial involvement in the park, said that she has never been convinced that the expenditure would be a legitimate value for the city.

She said it was too much money for too small a piece of land and because of the size of the property the city will be limited as to what can be done with it. She said the museum had expressed an interest in moving the museum to the center of the property and that she understood the museum's interest in acquiring the property, but that as a council member she had to consider spending the city's money wisely.

by Councilman Harold Heischouer.

In response to the vote, City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck Monday established a public hearing and advertisement schedule to meet the requirement that the bonds be authorized prior to Dec. 31.

The initial council discussion will be Nov. 9 with first and second publication of hearing notices and appropriation Nov. 15 and 22, a first reading of the bond ordinance/appropriation, Nov. 23, and a public hearing/second reading of the bond ordinance/appropriation, Dec. 7.

Recommended to be included in the $8 million for 1987 are:

*South Independence Boulevard-Princess Anne Road to Salem Road, $4.9 million which will provide a four-lane divided road linking to the project now under design from Princess Anne to Holland Road.

*Northampton Boulevard (Phase II A) - Pleasure House Road to Shore Drive, $1,383,292.

*Indian Lakes Boulevard, Phase II, Indian River Road to Ferrell Parkway, $1,716,708 for four-laning of the segment.

The 1986 General Assembly approved the $8 million borrowing authority for road, highway and bridge improvements after voters had turned down a road bond referendum in 1985. State Sen. Clarence Holland authorized the bill. City council, however, refused to use the bonds because the voters had not agreed to the expenditure.

The authority is contingent on the city's spending 20 percent of the bonds issued without an election reserved for roads, highways and bridges. Block said the city meets the 20 percent requirements.

Plane crash

✓A plane crash killed Wesley Hall, prominent Virginia Beach restaurateur, and his wife, who were missing since Sunday.

A five day search ended in tragedy Thursday when the wreckage of their single-engine plane was found in a remote New Jersey swamp.

The Hulls were leaving La Guardia Airport in New York bound for Manteo, N.C.

Hull, who was known for his good humor, operated Wesley's at the Beach and another restaurant in Greenwich, Conn.

Oceanfront suicide

✓A New Jersey woman died at Virginia Beach General on Saturday after jumping from a seventh floor oceanfront hotel. The woman jumped from a balcony at the Breakers Resort Inn at 16th Street in an apparent suicide, according to a published report.

Sign ordinance

✓The Virginia Beach City Council wants to test down another billboard on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The city council is determined to have owners of business signs to tear down the large and stodgy signs and replace the signs with smaller ones.

The sign ordinance that was passed last year only applies to new developments but the council wants all large billboards in Virginia Beach torn down.

On Monday the city council began compiling its annual legislative package including a sign ordinance that will allow Virginia Beach to tear down large billboards. The legislative package will be brought to the General Assembly in January.

Sentara

✓Sentara Health System wants to build a $24.7 million, 75-bed hospital in Princess Anne. It would be the first hospital in the city south of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

A required public hearing on the proposal will not be held until December and the Department of Health which is reviewing the application is not expected to make a decision until March 6.

Dropout project

✓Virginia Beach put to work a $300,000 pilot program to reduce the city's dropout rate from 5.4 percent. The state's average is 4.4 percent.

Twenty-two students from Plaza and Bayside Junior High Schools were enrolled in the "Stay in School" program at the Career Development Center.

Board expired

✓Three board members' terms have expired on the city's Historical Review Board as of Oct. 31.

The five member board can no longer meet because a quorum of three is required and the city council has not appointed three new members.

It may take until the first of the year for the appointment of new board members, according to a published report.

Water conservation

✓Virginia Beach residents are being asked to conserve water because Norfolk's water reservoirs slipped toward drought levels.

Low rainfall over the past several months declined Norfolk's water supply, which also serves Virginia Beach. The reservoirs are at about 62 percent of capacity.

Anti-drug campaign

✓A yearlong anti-drug campaign will be sponsored by the Virginia Beach school system and PTAs. Eight prizes totaling $4,600 will be awarded to schools in the project.

The campaign will begin Nov. 16-20 with "Communities and Schools Without Drugs - Get it Straight, Accept the Challenge" week.

Schools will sponsor essay and drawing contests, form "Just Say No" clubs and bring in speakers to kick off the campaign.

The prize money comes from a $120,000 federal grant. The funds will be used for teaching supplies and to hire police officers to talk about drugs in schools during the yearlong campaign.

Library proposals

✓A proposal to unite libraries with other municipal agencies is underway. The proposal is one of several in a report that recommends the temporary leasing of 21,000 square feet for libraries and the construction of six facilities over the next eight years.

No price tag is projected but city officials are endorsing it for city council approval.

Although a $7.8 million Central Library will open in January, officials predict that new facilities will still be necessary.

Tree ordinance rewritten by city council

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

The tree protection ordinance among the city's legislative proposals looked more like a case against a tree ordinance than for one. Or so thought Councilwoman Reba McClanahan who suggested a "more positive way" to express the city's position.

She pointed out Monday that the proposal was the only one which in its recommendation to the General Assembly did not say "should."

In fact, the recommendation merely noted that in the Nov. 3 referendum the voters of the city approved a request to the General Assembly to allow the city to have the right to provide for the protection and/or replacement of trees during land development and subdivision activities on private property in the city.

McClanahan submitted the changed recommendation which says the General Assembly should allow the city through its

Cox Cable tower won't be erected inside Pungo

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

By a 6-5 vote, City Council Monday turned down a request by Cox Cable Hampton Roads for a conditional use permit for a tower in Pungo.

The 16,988 square foot site where the tower was to have been erected is located on the west side of Princess Anne Road 340 feet south of Indian River Road, Pungo's main intersection which is expected to develop into one of the city's principal business areas. The property is zoned AG-2 Agricultural District.

The transmission tower would provide cable television services to residences in the southern part of the city. The tower would be 100 feet tall measuring approximately 14 feet across each of its three sides along the base. It would be mounted on a 420 square-foot concrete pad.

R. G. Nutter, attorney for Cox, said the tower will be Cox's shortest tower in the city. He said the cable franchise tower would serve areas under development and Pungo and Blackwater.

Frank Bowers, vice president/general manager Cox Cable Hampton Roads, said that the Little Miss Virginia Beach visits Governor

Little Miss Virginia Beach of 1987, Jennifer Lee Harvie, a fifth-grader in Mrs. Flowers' class at Providence Elementary in Kempsville, recently visited Governor Gerald Ballies at his Government House in Richmond.

Jennifer and her family were given a private tour of the House and Senate. Jennifer indicated that during their meeting they discussed education, her family and the possibility of Governor Ballies visiting her school. She is the daughter of Allan and Donna Harvie.

"Need some relief"

Beach residents may come under cloud of mandatory water conservation measures if more rain is not forthcoming; voluntary water conservation measures ordered

By Valerie A. Olander
Staff Writer

The Virginia Beach Department of Public Utilities has requested citizens to voluntarily conserve water because of the less than normal rainfall which is depleting Norfolk's water supply.

Virginia Beach obtains all of its water from Norfolk. Clarence Warnstaff, director of the Virginia Beach Department of Public Utilities, said that "seven of the 10 months, this year, have had less than average rainfall. Rainfall is helpful to us if it's evenly distributed throughout the year."

The average rainfall in a year is 45.22 inches, according to the National Weather Service at the Norfolk airport. As of Nov. 12, 41 inches of rain have fallen this year.

"Seven of the 10 months, this year, have had less than average rainfall. Rainfall is helpful to us if it's evenly distributed throughout the year," said Clarence Warnstaff, director of the Virginia Beach Department of Public Utilities.

Warnstaff is concerned about the dry conditions.

"We need some relief, in the form of smaller or less demand on the water supply, or more rain," he said.

There are benefits to voluntarily conserve water, according to Warnstaff.

"Using less water, they get a smaller bill from us and the Hampton Roads Sanitation Division," he said, "and it helps with the water situation."

Water bills from the city's Department of Public Utilities are based on meter readings of how much water is actually used and the Hampton Roads Sanitation Division uses that

Lake Gaston project underway; Beach and Chesapeake share project

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach and Chesapeake have entered into a contract to share the ownership and cost of the Lake Gaston project.

Chesapeake, where city council approved the contract last week, will become one-sixth owner, and Virginia Beach will own the remaining five-sixths of the project. The Beach city council approved the contract Monday.

Under the contract, Chesapeake will pay for one-sixth of the cost, $33 million, of the $200 million project and will receive 10 million gallons of water a day (mgd).

Chesapeake has included $47 million for the project in its current Capital Improvement Program and expects the total cost to be $57 million which includes $20 million for a treatment plant and $4.4 million for lines.

Rate increases to pay for the cost in Chesapeake are expected to be 41 percent.

Although it has been understood that Chesapeake would get 10 mgd from Lake Gaston, the

Expired plates

A Virginia Beach police officer, K. W. Hannah, had no idea he was pulling over a presidential candidate for an expired license plate.

Pat Robertson, founder of Christian Broadcasting Network and Republican presidential candidate, was driving south on Atlantic Avenue near 52nd Street when Hannah noticed the expired license tags.

The 1987 Ford Bronco, which Robertson was driving, was registered to CBN University. CBN is responsible for the upkeep of its licenses and will pay the fine of $35.

Beach stabbing

A jury recommended an 11-year prison term for Tommy E. Caulder, of Norfolk, for the stabbing incident last May at the Tomcat Lounge in Virginia Beach, which left two brothers and Caulder wounded.

The incident began when a 16-year-old boy had given Caulder $20 to buy marijuana. Caulder went into the bar with the money and didn't return.

Joe Rabic and his brother Martin agreed to help the boy. The brothers found Caulder inside the bar and asked him to step outside. Joe Rabic asked him to return the money. Caulder said he didn't have it. A small fight broke out in which Rabic punched Caulder. The fight ended and the Rabics went back into the bar.

Later that evening the Rabic brothers left the bar. Caulder was waiting outside; he plucked the knife into Joe Rabic's chest. Caulder took off running and Martin Rabic followed him. A struggle for the knife took place in the neighborhood behind the bar where Martin Rabic and Caulder were both stabbed in the struggle.

Shopping centers

Sunstate Properties, a Raleigh, N.C., based developing firm, wants to build an 18-acre shopping center on the southeast corner of Diamond Springs and Haygood roads.

The site could possibly be the scene of a 45-acre shopping area.

Ramon Breeden, a local developer, has already planned to build a 27-acre center on the opposite corner.

John Williams, who owns three of the four corners at the intersection, plans to commercialize each corner plus add 200 condominiums on an adjacent plot.

Personality Profile

Schools must break "50's mentality," Chapman says

By Valerie A. Olander
Staff Writer

While other fathers can tease their children about walking miles to school in the deep snow, Jamie Chapman, the executive director of the Virginia Beach Educational Association (VBEA), can tell his two children, Jay and Anna, about being a young boy driving a tractor while his father was spraying the fruit.

"The work was never done," he said, and considering his position on the VBEA, his work is a never-ending process of hard work.

Chapman grew up on a fruit farm in Niagara County, N.Y., and began his career at the State University of New York in Oswego from 1963-67, graduating with a degree in education.

He taught sixth-grade for a year in a suburb in Rochester, N.Y., until he was drafted in 1968.

He enlisted in the U.S. Navy and trained in Key West, Fla., as an Aviation Fire Control Technician. Finally he was stationed at Oceana Naval Base in Virginia Beach.

After Chapman served in the Navy, he began his career in the Virginia Beach school system, teaching six years at Kemps Landing Elementary School.

His final year at Kemps Landing, he was president of the association for the school and was then temporarily hired by VBEA in February of 1977. Only a half a year later he was asked to stay on permanently associate director. In 1980 he received a promotion to the position he holds today.

"If you do great things in the beginning, then they will have a better chance down the line," Chapman said.

executive director of the VBEA.

Chapman's wife, Sarah, is a guidance counselor at Princess Anne Junior High School. His two children, Jay, is in first grade at Kingston Elementary, and Anna, is in preschool at Sunny Brook.

Chapman says that there are many reasons why he became involved with the V.B.E.A.

Chapman's duties as executive director are many: leadership training, association leadership, communication work, organizational development and being in the political arena, involving lobbying, covering meetings, government relations and keeping up with the school board, General Assembly and city council members.

Chapman's view on the recent approval by voters of an elected school board is that "if something isn't broken why try to fix it."

Virginia Beach is known for having a good school system.

"A good school system is a lot of hard work," Chapman said. "It's the board, administration and teachers that went after it and said 'we want a good school system."

Chapman said that the Virginia Beach schools "are not great, but they can be."

"The superintendent has a vision for a future that everyone believes in," he continued. "Going from good to great is going to be a lot easier than going from average to good. It's a school and family effort under city council and state. You have to spend more money to accomplish more things."

In the future Chapman would like to do more for "kids at risk," who are kids that are not succeeding or slow learners. He wants to take kids not yet geared for kindergarten and enroll them in an interim kindergarten or a transitional year

Sign ordinance needed

The Virginia Beach City Council's "wish list" to the General Assembly includes an amortization of non-conforming signs.

The present sign ordinance controls the number, size and height of new billboards in Virginia Beach, but the signs that were standing when the ordinance was passed don't have to abide to the ordinance.

The city is not authorized to do anything about the existing billboards considering the investment advertisers already put forth for the signs.

Amortization of non-conforming signs would allow the businesses who own the non-conforming signs a period of time before the signs have to concur with the sign ordinance.

Although the constitutional right of Freedom of Speech allows businesses to advertise, there are other forms of doing so without cluttering the roadways. The city is not denying businesses the right to advertise but rather trying to modify the cluster of large and stodgy signs.

The General Assembly action is needed to keep Virginia Beach roadways clear of what could become a very tacky-looking problem. — V.A.O.

Consider road space before zoning

Virginia Beach wants to improve the city's transportation problems but, in the past, the city was putting up new homes and commercial industries faster than the roads could be completed.

The Diamond Springs and Haygood roads intersection opened three months ago surrounded by new subdivisions.

Thumbs up to the planning commission for considering road space before developing another metropolis of commercial buildings that the roads can't handle.

Virginia Beach Planning Commission has already planned for a 27-acre shopping center to be constructed at that intersection and the commission has also endorsed a rezoning for another 18-acre center to be constructed on the opposite corner.

The 45-acres of shopping centers are not the problem. The problem is grander plans to commercialize each corner, plus 200 condominiums on an adjacent corner by John Williams, who owns three of the four corners.

The prospect of all the development stiffened the city's Planning Commission and the staff recommended against the Williams' rezoning saying that the new roads couldn't handle the traffic.

Williams withdrew the proposal and the 200 condo project.

The new Diamond Springs-Haygood intersection is without shopping areas on the two four-lane streets.

The 45-acre shopping centers have been endorsed by the commission but the city council will have to approve the zoning next month to construct one of the largest commercial corners in Virginia Beach. The commercial intersection will be competing with 53 acres of Kempsville and Providence roads, 43 acres at General Booth and Dam Neck roads, 38 acres at Holland Road and South Plaza Trail, and 36 acres at Great Neck and First Colonial roads.

Thumbs up to the planning commission for considering road space before developing another metropolis of commercial buildings that the roads can't handle. — V.A.O.

Homeless and the government

The Virginia Beach Office of Housing and Community Development was given a $37,000 grant for emergency shelter programs.

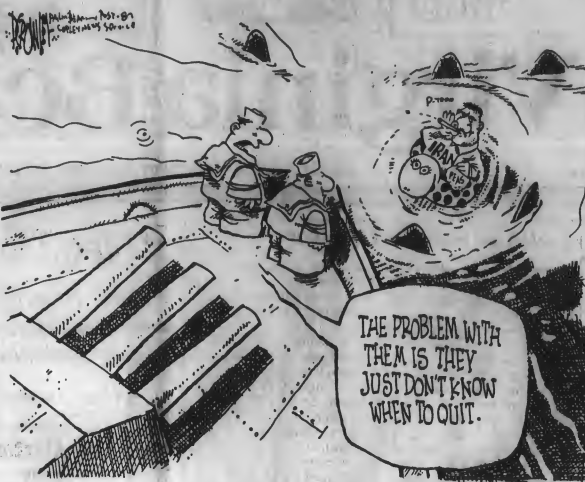

Virginia Beach has two permanent shelters, Samaritan House I and II that are operated by non-profit groups of churches.

Mothers Inc., also operates in area churches when temperatures are lower than 35 degrees. The program operates on $11,000 budget and a state grant supplies only $7,500 of that amount.

The Virginia Beach Coalition for the Homeless last year, in its first year of existence convinced the General Assembly to commit $400,000 for emergency assistance. It was less than six percent of the total money spent on shelters.

The majority of the funding is coming from the private and religious sector.

The grant money of $37,000 for emergency shelter programs is not going to go very far to help the homeless. The government needs to give more assistance to these programs because non-profit organizations can't do it all on their own. — V.A.O.

Caution urged on catalogue shopping

Question: I like to do my Christmas shopping through mail order catalogues, but had a lot of trouble last year with delayed deliveries. Is there a law that protects people against problems with mail order?

Answer: Yes, the Federal Trade Commission's Mail Order Rule protects consumers who purchase merchandise through the mail. Because the convenience of mail ordering has become so popular in recent years, problems such as late delivery and non-delivery are even more likely to occur. You can avoid a lot of common mistakes and irritations by simply shopping and ordering carefully. But, if it's the company who fails to do its part by delivering an item promptly, make sure you understand how the Mail Order Rule can work for you.

When you order something from a catalogue company you should expect your merchandise by the specified delivery date or, if no time is specified, within thirty days. If your order does not arrive within the time limit, you have the right to cancel it and receive a full refund. Refunds for orders paid by check, cash or money order must be mailed by the company within 7 days of your cancellation. If you purchased the item by credit card, the company must credit your account within one billing period from the time you cancel.

If a shipment cannot be made on time, the company must contact you, notifying you of your right to cancel. You should be given the choice of canceling or accepting a later delivery date. If such mail order regulations are not followed, contact the State Office of Consumer Affairs or the U.S. Postal Service to make a complaint. There are some exceptions to the Mail Order Rule however. Orders made with a credit card over the phone are not covered by the rule when the account is not charged prior to mailing the merchandise. Photo finishing, seeds and plants, COD orders, and magazine subscriptions and serial deliveries (excepting the initial shipment) are also not included.

If you're a frequent catalogue shopper, the following tips may help you to avoid problems and get the most for the money you pay:

- Deal with well-known, established companies. If you are unfamiliar with a specific company, call the Office of Consumer Affairs to see if complaints have been filed against it.

- Shop and compare. Prices for the same item often vary a great deal from catalogue to catalogue.

- Check to see if the items you are ordering are offered on a "Satisfaction Guaranteed" basis.

- Mail your order at least 4 weeks before you will need the item.

- Never send cash through the mail — pay by check or money order. (Remember to include shipping and handling costs.)

"Consumer Comments" is a weekly feature that provides educational information on consumer issues and concerns. Apple Jack Morning

A day in the life of my three-year-old niece is quite amusing to say the least. Her mornings are filled with good spirit and never-ending energy.

I guess the cereals could possibly be to blame for this burst of energy. It could be either the sugar fix that makes her bounce off the walls or maybe it is just the toy inside.

Inside this week's package of Apple Jacks was a "free dinosaur marker". How exciting, kids can collect all six and draw on the walls.

My niece spends the majority of her mornings either taking each individual Apple Jack out of the bowl of milk and lining them up on the table or fishing through the box of cereal to find the free toy. By the time she gets to the toy, she's usually arm deep into the box.

I think the cereal manufacturers make sure that the toy is on the very bottom of the box so that the kid can fling the cereal all over the kitchen.

Inside this week's package of Apple Jacks was a "free dinosaur marker". How exciting, kids can collect all six and draw on the walls.

After the excursion into the bottom of the box of Apple Jacks, I hear an enthusiastic yell of victory, "a pen!" Not only is this an ordinary pen but, oh boy, it's a tyrannosaurus pen.

Of course, there is a maze to color on the back of the box, how convenient, a full box of Apple Jacks flipped on its side.

Her afternoons are full of surprises for everyone, whether it entails feeding the birds crickets or just letting them out of their cage.

Yesterday, she ran up to me with big and bright eyes, she grabbed my hand and yanked me out of the room. "Look, look," she was saying. I had a feeling that I knew what was in store. The bathroom. She pointed happily, "Look, look." I guess only a mother could be pleased over a triumph like that.

On days that she isn't hungry, I can guarantee that a half-eaten piece of hotdog is going to mysteriously appear on my plate.

Dinner time is a routine of spilled milk which is usually aimed toward me. Sitting next to my niece at the dinner table can also be hazardous to my health. When she is hungry, I must beware of putting my hand too close to her plate or else I will be stabbed with a fork. On days that she isn't hungry, I can guarantee that a half-eaten piece of hotdog is going to mysteriously appear on my plate.

Her evenings require drawing on her brother and sister's homework, knocking over plants, dumping red Kool-Aid on white carpeting and sudden bursts of loud squeals.

By the time bedtime is announced her bottom lip begins to pucker as she makes her way slowly to her bed, turning back every few steps to see if anyone will let her stay up long enough to watch David Letterman.

Finally the house becomes quiet as her father asks, "Is it legal to remove vocal chords from small children?"

VBEA offers input for city council's 1988-89 budget

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

I had the opportunity at the Virginia Beach School Board Budget Hearing last Thursday at Princess Anne High to present VBEA's ideas for the next budget. I share those remarks with you in this week's column:

Chairman Fletcher, Dr. Melvin, and school board members, I am Rob Jones, and I speak tonight on behalf of the more than 2,800 members of the Virginia Beach Education Association. I thank you for this opportunity for input as you develop the budget for our schools.

A primary goal should continue to be attracting and retaining the best employees available. Our salaries must reach, and then exceed, the national average over the coming years. Regional and national competition for educators is fierce, the predicted teacher shortage is becoming a reality, and Virginia Beach must meet the challenge of the job market.

It is time to develop a new salary scale for all employees. The salary scale currently employed makes no sense to employees. It is impossible for most to determine the pay they should receive without consulting with either the association or the Personnel Department. It is time to seek consultation to determine the internal equity of our system's salaries, to compare our salaries with those offered by the city, to do comparisons with other systems in the mid-Atlantic region with whom we compete for personnel, and to develop a salary schedule which is clear and understandable to employees.

Until a new scale can be developed, funds must be provided to correct inequities on the beginning rungs of our present scale. Some teachers are receiving no compensation for teaching experience. If we are to attract the best experienced teachers to our system, we must reward transfer teachers for their experience in other systems, as our neighboring localities do. We must also match the compensation in compensation awarded for advanced educational degrees and in the school board's contribution to health insurance and make other insurance options available to those who do not subscribe to system sponsored health insurance.

The building-level employees, be they administrators, teachers, secretaries or custodians, work together as a team. These employees are the backbone of education. Under the able leadership of our School Board and Dr. Melvin, we must bring this team together as one. It is time to give the same percentage increases to all school level personnel.

Addressing the needs of our "At Risk" youth must remain as one of our goals. Efforts, including our drug counseling program, and the fine alternative school we have in the Career Development Center, are a beginning; however, we must work to insure that every child in Virginia Beach has a future worth looking forward to.

One dropout, one teenage pregnancy, one adolescent addict is one too many. The financial resources required to address this goal cannot be totally provided in one budget year; however, we can begin by providing the transition class between kindergarten and grade one that Dr. Melvin has suggested, by providing a teacher aide in all first grade classrooms, and by beginning an alternative school program which addresses the needs of all students, including those of junior high age. The twenty-first century does not promise the uneducated child a future worth looking forward to.

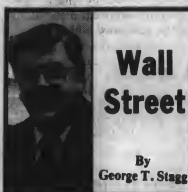

Our next budget must include a continued commitment to the Standards of Quality which will call for reduction in first grade and secondary English class sizes. Recent research from VEA reveals that of all the 135 school systems in our state, Virginia Beach ranks 135 in number of Instructional Personnel Positions Per 1,000 Students in Average Daily Membership. It is time that we faced up to the class size problem. The budget should also reflect a continued commitment to existing programs such as the gifted program.

We need a budgetary commitment to bringing advanced technology to the schools. The application of bar graph technology to student attendance could save many staff hours in each school each day. It was recently reported to VBEA that it takes eleven pieces of paper to get a replacement bulb for a film strip projector. It used to take one phone call. We need a system-level commitment to reducing paperwork, and the application of new technologies to the school setting will help solve this and other problems.

The budget hearing is separate from the CIP, but we thank the School Board for their continued progress toward air-conditioning every school and note the fact that teachers in the newly air-conditioned schools reported improved learning in the early days of this school year. We also urge you to be as aggressive as is possible in the building program. The present overcrowding is causing problems throughout the system.

The public will support a school board budget designed to improve the quality of education in our city. The citizens of Virginia Beach want the best education for tomorrow's workers. A baby boomer recently confided to me that he wanted the workers who are to fund social security after he retires to be the best educated work force in our nation's history. Whether it be this selfish motivation, or a more altruistic desire for a bright future for our children, our city and our nation, a budgetary course, toward educational excellence is the right thing to do. I have confidence that this board will set the right course.

This Year, One Million Americans Will Learn They Have Arthritis. You Could Be One Of Them.

Early morning stiffness, swelling around joints, and recurring pain are all danger signs of arthritis. If left untreated, joint damage may develop that cannot be reversed. You don't have to run that risk.

Your best defense is education and early detection.

Join us at 7 p.m. on November 23 for a free Arthritis Awareness Program. Medical professionals will speak on types of arthritis, treatment, therapeutic exercises and available services. Don't just ignore arthritis; chances are, it won't ignore you.

Fire historian needs support

Fire Safety

By Martin Grabe
Master Fire Fighter

Once again I am asking my readers to assist me in my research of the Virginia Beach Fire Department. Please look through your old photographs in your attic for photos of the early years of Virginia Beach or Princess Anne County.

To be more specific, I would like to portray the buildings on the oceanfront that have been destroyed by fire by displaying a before and after shot of a particular building. An original photo of an old motel will show how stately but cozy these cottages were. A photo of how the building looked while it burned will accompany each motel destroyed.

A book about a fire department is supposed to include every angle that makes up a historical event. The equipment used and the life threatening risks firefighters took are certainly worth making the general public aware of the chances they took. It is human nature to become fascinated by fire. How often do you sit in front of the fireplace with a cup of hot chocolate and watch the fire burn? How many times have you seen a large building fire and watched the firefighters work? Even firefighters who are off duty will go out of their way just to watch a fire consume a building.

Please go through your old photographs and look for any buildings within the town of Virginia Beach or Princess Anne County. I am also looking for photos of the fire station at 24th Street and Pacific Avenue. Also look for an early photo of the town hall at 16th Street. I intend for this book to be ready for publishing in February 1988.

Please contact me at 498-8035 if you find any old photos. Please test your smoke detector and think fire safety.

Community Actions

EMS seeking more volunteers

The Virginia Beach Emergency Medical Services Department needs volunteer rescue squad members for all shifts. Virginia Beach is one of 100 of the largest cities in the nation that has an all volunteer rescue squad. Training will be provided. For more information call 428-6002.

Haygood construction near completion

Haygood Road construction will be completed this month. Reconstruction has widened the road from two to four lanes between Independence Boulevard and Bayside High School. The road has also been realigned from Bayside High School to Diamond Springs Road to connect with Wesleyan Drive.

This project is an attempt to alleviate traffic on Northampton Boulevard and Newtown Road.

Volleyball registration begins Nov. 16

Registration for adult coed volleyball will be held Nov. 16 through 20 at the main office of the Parks and Recreation Department located at 2289 Lynnhaven Parkway.

Play will begin Jan. 4. At least 70 percent of the roster must be Virginia Beach residents. Fee is $175 per team. For more information call 471-4884.

Arthritis Awareness Program available

Virginia Beach General and the Tidewater Arthritis Foundation will hold an Arthritis Awareness Program on Monday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m., in the Virginia Beach General Hospital Health Education Center, located at 1060 First Colonial Road.

A panel of experts will discuss various types of arthritis, available treatment and available services through the Tidewater Arthritis Foundation.

Call the HealthQuest Line to Better Health at 481-8141 for more information.

Candy demo scheduled at Bow Creek

The Virginia Beach Park District's Christmas Candy Demonstration is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 21, from 2 to 4 p.m., at the Bow Creek Recreation Center.

The fee is $2 with samples and door prizes given away. Reservations and valid facility card or guest pass are required. For more information call 463-0505.

Pilot program needs volunteers

Volunteers, preferably handicapped individuals, are needed to join a Parking Enforcement Specialist Team of the Virginia Beach Police Department.

The pilot program is designed to identify vehicles illegally parked in handicapped parking zones. Vehicles found in violation will be issued a parking summons by the volunteer.

The program is fashioned after a similar program in Tampa, Florida. Stephen Johnson, chairman of the Virginia Beach Mayor's Committee for the Disabled, suggested the idea to Police Chief Charles R. Wall in early 1987.

Anyone interested in this program should contact Captain E.F. Buzzy Sr. at 427-4841, or Stephen Johnson at 625-3555.

Barbecue Bingo scheduled Nov. 28

The Bow Creek Recreation Center is sponsoring a barbecue bingo for youths aged six to 15-years-old on Saturday, Nov. 28, from 7 to 9 p.m. Prizes will be awarded. Reservations and valid facility card or guest pass is required. Call for reservations at 463-0505.

Holidays at the Beach

The first Holidays At The Beach celebration to be held over Thanksgiving weekend will kick off the holiday season with a variety of activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus and elves will arrive at the Dome, 19th Street and Atlantic Avenue, to lead the parade that starts at 4 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 28. Henry "The Bull" Del Toro of WNOR radio, which is co-sponsoring the parade, will lead the parade as grand marshal.

The parade will include the Plaza Junior High School marching band and color guard, floats, clowns, puppets, scout troops and an antique fire truck. It will end at Norwegian Lady Park at 25th Street where city officials will take part in a tree lighting ceremony at 5 p.m. Carolers will sing appropriate holiday music, and the Princess Anne Inn will provide free hot cider and cookies.

A Food Fair is scheduled at the Dome from 5-10 p.m. on Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is free. As well as food booths serving culinary treats, a wide range of entertainment is planned. Scheduled performers include Suzuki violinists, Janeda and Her Near East Dance Ensemble, the Wappadoole Puppets, guitarist Lewis McGehee, the Original Back Bay Mudhens All-American Dixieland Jazz Ensemble, and various singers, dancers and musicians. The Christmas Attic will display and sell decorated Christmas trees.

Tidewater Regional Transit trolleys will provide shuttle service between the Dome, a crafts fair at Pavilion, and two museums participating in Holidays At The Beach. The Virginia Beach Maritime Historical Museum will have its traditional Christmas open house, with free tours of the gallery, refreshments, a raffle, music and family activities.

The Virginia Marine Science Museum has three events scheduled. The Virginia Flyway Art Show will be held 1-3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Twelve award-winning Virginia artists will display their decoys and paintings of natural scenes depicting fowl as they make their way through Virginia's migratory paths.

The Virginia Beach Federated Women's Club will host a Virginia Seafood Tasting at the museum. Club members will serve dishes cooked from recipes in their cookbook, "From A To Sea." The book, available in the Virginia Marine Science Museum's gift shop, is dedicated to the museum and proceeds from its sale benefit the museum.

The museum will hold its regular public programs concerning marine life on Saturday and Sunday at 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. The 3 p.m. fish feeding in the large aquarium is another popular attraction. The admission ticket to the museum covers all the special Holidays At The Beach events held there.

The three-day Countryside Christmas Market at Pavilion starts on Friday, Nov. 27 and runs through Sunday. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day. There's a $3 admission charge for adults; children 12 and under are admitted free.

Others cooperating in presenting Holidays At The Beach are the Virginia Beach Restaurant Association, the Hampton Roads-Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, the City of Virginia Beach and numerous volunteers from the community.

For more information, contact the Virginia Beach Visitors Bureau toll-free at 1-800-446-8038. Calls are answered seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

contract makes it official. However, Virginia Beach's projected rate increases are based on total ownership by the Beach. With Chesapeake's participation these increases would be decreased.

Water for Isle of Wight and Franklin will come out of the Beach's share of the project.

Virginia Beach will remain as project manager and operator of the project.

Chesapeake's first payment of $1,107,134 is due in 60 days. This represents one-sixth of the project investment costs incurred by the Beach prior to the contract.

to prepare them for the future. "If you do great things in the beginning, then they will have a better chance to exceed down the line," he said.

The biggest problem facing the school system today, "is trying to get a good vision to the community of what schools can accomplish, so that the community can reach out and say, 'that's what we want schools to do to get that accomplished,'" he said.

Chapman said, "We must get ready for the 21st century and education is critically important."

"It's important for schools to break away from the 50's mentality," he said, "It's not as easy to educate, Beaver and Wally Cleaver, as it is today."

ded the favorable effects of better than expected trade deficit figures and most probably provided the fuel for a nice rally.

As a friend of mine put it, "Caesar and his Senate continue their feast and frolic while Rome burns." It seems, however, that the world focus is great for the frolic to continue much longer and the budget bargainers will come up with a plan before Graham-Rudman goes into effect this Friday. Of course, they could conceivably give up or even extend the deadline. But, if they do fail and the markets plummet, the voting public will know where to go next November for their pound of flesh.

You know I never cease to be amazed at the single greatest asset you find in Americans that you find to a much lesser degree in the rest of the world, it seems - their great sense of humor - their ability to laugh at themselves. Great stories and onliners seem to emerge in each crisis, disaster or travel experience. You may have heard that the crash would not have happened if Reagan were still President. Or, "We make money the old fashioned way; we sell apples on the corner". Or, the one about the divorcee whose ex-husband lost everything in the crash and shot himself, was heard to say, "Thank you, Paine-Webber".

And, Gary Hart, I'm told, may have lost the White House by a matter of inches, and someone else said that Tammy and Jimmy met in high school when they were both dating the same guy and the Supreme Court is going to pot. On and on. Some say they are sick jokes, and some are. But for the most part, our sense of humor is healthy and a great strength of American character.

As another example, two Jewish friends of mine, Bernie and Frank, lost about $200 in one round of golf last weekend in $2 Nassaus. Were they dejected? Seems not. They're claiming that they now hold the court record. What a sense of humor!

The sources of Norfolk's water supply come from reservoirs, river pump stations in the Notaway and Blackwater rivers, which flow from the Chowan River basin in west Suffolk, and four deep wells.

"We need adequate rainfall to replenish the flow in the rivers and reservoirs," Warnstaff said. "Average demand on the system is about 70 million gallons a day from the reservoirs, wells, and river pump stations," he continued.

Virginia Beach consumption alone uses 29 million gallons of water each day.

Talmadge Piland, assistant director of Public Utilities, said the reservoir levels are presently at 60 percent of capacity.

"We need 10 to 15 percent reduction in each home," Warnstaff said. "A move from voluntary to mandatory conservation depends on the weather conditions."

tower would serve 2,000 to 4,000 additional residences and would enhance existing service to 10,000 to 12,000 more.

Objections were that the tower would be too close to the intersection and that it would impact the property of Wayne Richard who is renovating a one-story historic structure on his property.

As much as she would like to have cable TV accessible in the southern part of the city, said Barbara Henley, Pungo councilwoman, she said she would move for denial of the application.

She said that Joseph Burroughs, owner of the site, is slipping the tower in a corner of his property, but is impacting the property of Richard and others at the intersection. She said the tower would be an eyesore for the adjoining property owners and nothing but redwoods would provide adequate landscaping. She said the owner of the property owns property farther away from the intersection and that the tower would be better on the opposite side of the railroad right-of-way or the other side of Indian River Road.

Cox officials said that denial of the application would necessitate approval of another location by the Federal Aviation Authority which would take another six to nine months.

The Planning Commission considered Sunstate's development, but strongly recommended against Williams' rezoning plans, arguing that the new roads couldn't handle the traffic.

They said that the approval already received for the site could be applied only on property within 100 feet of the present site.

Councilman Harold Heischob said that he agreed with Henley but knew that the people wanted the service. He asked that Henley consider a deferral to allow the applicant time to meet with Burroughs on another location. A new site, however, would require a new application.

city charter or by general law to have the right to provide for the protection and/or replacement of trees during land development and subdivision activities on private property.

She also rewrote the explanation preceding the recommendation, pointing out that Virginia Beach citizens have worked to protect the trees and from the early 1970's to the present, garden clubs, civic leagues and others have been actively involved in the movement to keep as many trees as possible. She concluded by pointing out that in the referendum the vote was 53,326 for the ordinance and 12,780 against the ordinance.

Mayor Robert G. Jones also suggested that the Council needed to work out what the ordinance would say.

McClanahan said she would bring back the ordinance.

Some of the city's ordinances, added Jones, almost require the elimination of trees.

Said McClanahan, who pushes landscaping in every rezoning request, "There are things that people can do if they wanted to."

Richard said that a six to eight months delay is little compared to a 40-year lease for the tower.

Baum said that a commercial area was the best place for the tower. He said that it would not be appropriate in the middle of a farm or in a residential area.

Voting with Henley were Councilmen Albert Balford and John D. Moss, Councilwomen Reba McClanahan and Nancy Parker, and Vice Mayor Meyera Oberdorf.

Assistant City Manager Robert Matthias, who represents Council's legislative interests, discuss the tree ordinance along with other proposals which the city would recommend to its local State delegation to the General Assembly. He will continue the explanation next week.

On the proposal to allow the taxation of mini warehouses or mini storage lockers, he said that many of the bulk storage owners also own the mini warehouses and don't want to pay more taxes. He said that a lot of businesses operate out of mini warehouses that don't pay any taxes at all. He said that with new members serving on the house finance committee, the proposal may have a better chance of passing this year than it had in the past.

Of the proposal for local taxation for phase two of the Commission on Transportation in the 21st Century (COT 21), he said that the requested two cent gas tax which would contribute $3 million in revenues, would not be imposed unless other localities in the region adopt the same tax. The tax would be at the retail level.

"We prefer the voluntary route," Warnstaff said. "They did respond and did cut back in the past."

The last water conservation for Virginia Beach was in the summer of 1986.

"If they take helpful tips, we could get it (consumption) to 10 percent down," Warnstaff said.

Some ways to reduce unnecessary water usage include the following guidelines issued by the Department of Public Utilities:

Outdoor usage —

- Limit lawn watering to once or twice a week. This also helps to produce a healthier lawn, as daily watering may promote disease and loss of lawn nutrients.

- Soaker-type hoses rather than sprinklers reduce the amount of water evaporation because it provides a more direct supply of water to the area.

Indoor usage —

- Take shorter showers. Turn water off while soaping and back on again to rinse.

- Install a shower head that restricts the amount of water flow. This can reduce the amount of water used from five gallons per minute to approximately two and one half gallons per minute.

- Run dishwashers or washing machines only for full loads.

Leak detection —

- To check commode for leakage, add a few drops of food coloring to the water but do not flush. If coloring doesn't appear in the bowl within a few minutes it needs adjustment or repairs.

- Replace faucet washers so that drips can be corrected promptly.

- An undetected leak can be checked by turning off all faucets, indoor and out, and then check your water meter. If it continues to run, check for a leak between the meter and house.

The public utilities department stresses that citizens have no control over the lack of rainfall, but it is possible to control the demands on the water system by using water efficiently. Call Public Utilities at 427-4631 for more information on leak detection and conservation tips.

Malibu takes stand against drugs

By Jackie Matthews
Special To The Virginia Beach Star
The Virginia Beach schools are taking a stand against drugs. The week of Nov. 16 through 20 was designated Substance Abuse Education Week.

At Malibu Elementary a committee including Paula Kamenicky, Sally Ballenberg, Joyce Johnson, Leslie Weaver and headed by Assistant Principal Perry Williams was formed to organize the week's activities.

"It's our job to educate our children about the dangers of drugs," Williams said.

Malibu began by having a poster contest for the fourth through sixth graders. All posters expressed the students' thoughts against drug abuse and were displayed throughout the school. The kindergarten through third grade had a book marker contest and they were displayed outside the library.

Mrs. Carolyn Long, the librarian, used the resources of the school's library throughout the week reinforcing lessons of substance abuse to each class with books, films, illustrations and listening centers.

$358,000 in cash awards

Service awards program slated

The City of Virginia Beach will hold its 17th Annual Service Awards Program on Thursday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. at the Pavilion. The purpose of the program is to commend service performed by municipal employees and to commend career employment with Virginia Beach.

Approximately $358,000 worth of cash awards will be given to deserving employees this year.

All full-time permanent employees are eligible to participate in the program. Employees receive a pin after five years of continuous employment. Cash tenure awards are given to employees with 10 or more years of service.

Special recognition will be given to employees with 25 years or more service to the city. Three city employees will also be inducted into the Employee Hall of Fame.

The Service Awards Program and the award ceremony are coordinated by the Virginia Beach Personnel Department (Employee Relations Division). For more information call 427-8949.

Beach police receive accreditation

The Virginia Beach Police Department has received accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies.

In order to gain the status, the department had to comply with 837 nationally recognized standards based on size, jurisdiction and legally mandated responsibilities.

During the process the department initiated an in-depth self-evaluation which reviewed all policies and procedures. This analysis led to the formation of a career development plan. Mutual aid and assistance plans were also developed with surrounding cities.

Virginia Beach is the 10th law enforcement agency in the Commonwealth of Virginia to receive this honor and is the 54th department in the nation to be recognized.

The accreditation lasts for five years, during which time the department must continue to comply with all standards. At the end of the fourth year, reaccreditation and a similar process are necessary to retain accreditation.

Social Services will feed 600 families for Thanksgiving

By Valerie A. Olander
Staff Writer

The Virginia Beach Department of Social Services is making sure no one will go hungry this Thanksgiving by offering free food to needy families.

Joyce Harrison, holiday projection coordinator for Social Services, estimates that the department will feed 600 to 650 families this Thanksgiving.

Last year, Social Services gave food to 473 needy families.

Free food that is distributed through the Thanksgiving holiday is a community effort sponsored by the Social Services department.

Joyce Harrison, holiday projection coordinator for Social Services, estimates that the department will feed 600 to 650 families this Thanksgiving.

An average Thanksgiving dinner costs from $25 to $40, Harrison said.

Social Services receives food from schools, churches and other organizations that promote food drives. Holland Elementary School alone has promised Social Services 900 cans of food.

Then volunteers from the Tidewater Detention Center will sort out the food and pack it for each individual family.

Harrison said that the food supplied to the families is usually enough to feed them for the entire day.

Social Services also arranges for concerned families to take care of a needy family.

The family will make personal contact with the needy family and make arrangements to give the family what they need, based on the size of the family, Harrison said.

The project to help the needy during the holiday also receives money donations from organizations. Social Services will make that money available

Tourism revenues increase; resort improvements on tap

An upward trend for the summer of 1987 tourist season in Virginia Beach resulted in hotel and restaurant increases in sales.

Hotel sales for the three-month season increased 11.2 percent from last year. In June, July and August of this year, sales equaled $58 million. In the summer of 1986 hotel sales only reached $52 million.

Total hotel sales this year, through September were up 9.1 percent with a total sales of over $59 million.

Restaurant sales were also on the incline totaling $97 million, a 10.1 percent increase from 1986.

Jim Ricketts, the coordinator of the Tourist Development

Division, said, "We had a very good summer tourist season."

"Tourism is going to prosper," he continued, although since 1984 business tourism has declined.

In 1984, 3.3 percent of total tourists visiting Virginia Beach were on business trips. The total reached 4.6 percent in 1986 and this year, that number has dropped to 2.3 percent of all tourists

Drive thru

A car crashed through the front window of Coreia's Dunkin' Donut shop on Virginia Beach Boulevard and pinned a customer to the counter.

Aletha R. Hall drove up to the counter through the plate glass window in her 1965 Mustang, luckily not harming I. R. Schosnagel, the 58-year old woman who was eating a croissant at the counter.

The donut shop is owned by Eddie and Guida Correia, who are replacing the plate glass window for the second time this week. Earlier in the week three men broke into a fight outside the window. One man tried to hit another man with a lead pipe, which apparently missed the man and broke through the window.

Lonise Bias

Lonise Bias, the mother of Len Bias the former University of Maryland basketball star who died of a cocaine overdose in June of 1986, spoke to the Virginia Beach Council of PTAs at Thoroughgood Elementary School.

She discussed what causes children to turn to drugs, early sex and crime. She also talked about parents failing to communicate with their children and not showing their affection.

Cox Cable

The planning commission blocked a new Cox Cable tower construction in Pungo off the intersection of Princess Anne and Indian River roads on the southwestern corner.

Commission members say that the issue is about whether this is an appropriate place for the 100-foot tower not whether to bring cable services to the city's rural southern half, according to a published report.

Beach Rail

The Virginia Beach Hotel and Motel Association voted in a closed meeting to endorse a $98.3 million light rail system.

The line would start in downtown Norfolk and end six blocks from the oceanfront at the Pavilion Convention Center instead of the Civic Center on Pacific Avenue to avoid adding to the strips congestion.

The rail would run along an existing railway that would be leased from Norfolk Southern Corp.

Rec center director sees images of society; Jack D. Dowdy

By Valerie Olander
Staff Writer

Jack D. Dowdy sees "the image of society every week."

Dowdy is the recreation supervisor at the Kempsville Recreation Center under direction of the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department.

"I work with all different kinds of people, different ages, different capacities and physical capabilities," he said.

He grew up in Hillsborough, N.C., and attended North Carolina State University. He was a Zoology major but was unsatisfied. He changed his major to Parks and Recreation administration.

"I figured I was more people oriented than a test-tube tester," he said.

Dowdy graduated in January of 1966 and began working with the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department three months later, as a recreation supervisor III.

"The budget then was under $400,000," he said. "It involved a lot of program development, designing and developing Kempsville."

"It was a 10-year plan for rec centers on bond referendums," he continued.

In 1977, after the opening of the Kempsville center, he received the position of assistant superintendent of recreation.

After 22 years with the department, he said his duties are "similar to a principal in a school."

"I make sure everything operates okay, that programs are implemented, and stay on top of mechanical operations," he said.

Dowdy's wife, Janet, is also involved with the Parks and

"I work with all different kinds of people, different ages, different capacities and physical capabilities," Dowdy said.

Recreation Department. She is administrative assistant to the recreation administrator. He also has a 17-year-old daughter, Jessica.

Dowdy works with the other recreation centers and manages the 26 full-time employees and 44 part-time employees at Kempsville.

"I think it is important for young children to get involved with park and recreation activities "to interact with other children."

"Pre-school age children will make the transition to kindergarten better," he said.

"The pre-school program is basically babysitting while parents are doing activities in the building."

The recreation centers have "all activities for adults and families," he said, "aquatics, performing arts and therapeutic programs."

In one year at Kempsville and Bow Creek rec centers, 1,500 buy or revalidate facility use cards, more than 40,000 people buy the daily rec pass and numerous people use the facility without charge, such as receiving flu shots by the city's health department.

The good, the bad, and the ugly; the integrity of police promotions

In the beginning of October, the city manager appointed a panel to investigate allegations that in March 1986, the lieutenant's assessment center for the Virginia Beach police department had been "compromised" or rather, influenced to favor a particular candidate.

The issue is that the assessors for the promotional evaluation were allegedly contacted before the assessment center and were influenced to promote a particular candidate.

An independent panel reviewed the allegations and interviewed more than 15 people. Its findings show that the assessors had been influenced and this resulted in the promotion of a particular candidate.

The final report also states that the integrity of the assessment center "was not compromised and remains intact."

Other findings state that Police Chief Charles R. Wall didn't authorize anyone to be contacted by the assessors before the assessment center "in order to influence their rating of the candidates." The finding also states that "no contact was ever made" and that Wall was "unaware that any statements had been made concerning a possible compromise."

The fact remains that a candidate received a promotion because the assessors were influenced.

It is impossible that the integrity of the assessment center and promotional policy of the police department wasn't compromised and is intact. The fact remains that a candidate received a promotion because the assessors were influenced.

According to Wall, "no contact was ever made" but the panel's finding shows that the assessors were influenced and a particular candidate was promoted.

It also will never be known if Chief Wall knew about the "compromise" which resulted in the promotion or whether Chief Wall suffers from the same type of amnesia that Ronald Reagan did in the Iran-Contra hearings. If Chief Wall was unaware of statements made about a possible compromise maybe his memory is failing also.

The result of these allegations are the good, the bad, and the ugly.

The good comes from recommendations to restructure the promotional process of the police department by assigning the Personnel Department with the responsibility of developing and administering the police department's promotional process.

The bad resulted in the promotion of a "particular candidate," who is now a police lieutenant.

And the ugly is that the Chief of police knew nothing about what was happening in his department. — V.A.O.

Worthy RIBS?

Conventional general obligation bonds are issued by the city at the starting cost of $5,000, allowing large financial establishments to buy into a local issue.

The city is considering to adopt a policy of issuing minibonds or Revenue Improvement Bonds (RIBS) for as little as $250.

This will allow the private sector to become small investors with the city.

If the policy is approved, small investors will be able to purchase municipal bonds in small denominations of $250 to $1,000.

The bonds would be sold tax free. Although bonds are unlike stocks there would be no fluctuation in price except for the time allowed interest.

If the policy is approved, small investors will be able to purchase municipal bonds in small denominations of $250 to $1,000.

If the city does adopt the policy, the city would most likely continue to borrow the bulk of its money from conventional general obligation bond issues, although the little guy will be able to participate in the local bond issues.

Some of the problems with this policy are market timing risks because minibonds will have to be priced before the sale. Other problems will be instances where the purchaser will want to sell back the bonds to the city too soon, which will lack a secondary market because of the small denomination.

For long time investors, the idea of minibonds is a worth-while investment because of the time allowed interest. Minibonds would also allow local residents who cannot afford the cost of a $5,000 share to lend Virginia Beach money for the future of the city at a fixed interest. — V.A.O.

A phobia for everybody

By Heidi Ketter
Staff Writer

Last Friday the 13th was a rather uneventful day for me. The only thing that happened was a meter maid handed me my first parking ticket in Portsmouth.

Rather anti-climactic considering that one out of every two people I talked to that day had to remind me, as if foreseeing doom, that it was Friday the 13th. Nothing has ever happened to me that would lead me to believe that date should be any different from any other. It's always just an ordinary day.

That's not to ignore the fact that many people do experience immense misfortune last Friday. So, because of that bad luck, they will probably live the rest of their lives fearing Friday the 13th.

Triskidaphobia, the fear of Friday the 13th, is just another of a long list of unfounded fears or phobias that afflict human beings.

Someone recently told me that fear of heights is probably the most common human phobia because subconsciously people are afraid they will jump. Interesting, to say the least. But, while recently touring the upper floors of a tall building in the early stages of its construction, I think my nervousness came from the fear of a strong wind blowing me over the edge.

Hidden, unrealistic fears are usually safe guarded for no one else to see, but everyone has them, even the most sensible and logical person.

The fact that I could also see through the metal floor grating all the way down to the bottom of the building didn't give me much inner security either.

No one steps on a grate in a city sidewalk if they don't have to. That's another phobia, I'm sure. You don't know where they go down and they never look too secure.

Although the newly laid floor on which I walked was more than safe, it was this long-held inner feeling about gratings that overruled any reassurances.

A name is given to a phobia every day. This became evident when on Oct. 31 the Sniglet for the day on my Sniglet calendar was Psychophobia, the fear of being a shower because of your feeling that someone is lurking behind the curtain ready to start stabbing you repeatedly with a butcher knife. A gruesome, yet unfounded and silly fear, inspired by the Alfred Hitchcock movie Psycho, and probably a widely-held phobia.

The silliest thing I ever did as a result of an unfounded fear was relocating an antique doll from the bedroom to a less frequently used room. I didn't want to see one night the doll's cracked face dissolve into a toothy grin. I didn't feel very good about moving her, either, imagining that some night she might seek revenge. Sounds like the makings of a good horror story, off you go, horror!

Hidden, unrealistic fears are usually safe-guarded for no one else to see, but everyone has them, even the most sensible and logical person. The fear may blossom when a person is alone, especially at night.

Putting off Christmas shopping

Thanksgiving is here and while everyone is slicing a tender piece of turkey, overindulging with stuffing and mashed potatoes, and trying to force a piece of thick pumpkin pie into their belly to the point of oversatiation, I will be dreading the thought that there is less than a month left to do my Christmas shopping.

I always laughed at people who do their Christmas shopping in June but I guess the joke is on me.

I remember last year's adventure of going to the mall the day after Thanksgiving.

The parking lot at the mall was the first sign that it was Christmas. Panic stricken drivers were cruising each aisle for a close parking spot for fear they might have to walk an extra few feet to the mall entrance.

Normally, I would just park in the back and walk, but the friend I was with insisted on playing the parking game. I usually don't enjoy driving around a parking lot for a half hour but I have to admit it was a little entertaining.

The first step in playing the parking game is to scope out your victim. Tina noticed a lady coming out of the mall with her arms full of packages and she decided to follow her to her car and steal her parking spot when she leaves.

The lady was performing a balancing act with all her packages so it took her longer than normal to get to her car. Finally, she opened her trunk and unburdened her load inside. Then she slammed the trunk and headed back to the mall.

Tina was furious but she still wanted to stake out another tired shopper bound for home.

Victim number two was another woman, a little younger than the first, and had fewer packages. We started to follow her. She strode past the first aisle of cars and into the second. Tina decided she must be parked in the back forty so we went back to the entrance to find another victim.

This victim was a man, possibly a football player. He began in the third aisle, cut across the fourth and fifth, and up the sixth aisle, does a reversal back to the fifth and paces the parking lot like an expecting father in search of his car.

He was lost.

Tina was beginning to get a little perturbed by this time but refused to park in the back and walk.

She spots another woman with about four kids. We begin the hot pursuit for a parking spot again and she is victim number four. The chase doesn't last as long this time.

"She's only 10 cars away from the door; can you believe it?" Tina says.

While Tina is yakking about how lucky we are to only have waited 45 minutes for this choice parking spot, a carload of teenagers come out of nowhere and steal the parking spot.

As Tina's blood pressure rises, I began to think that doing your Christmas shopping in June isn't such a silly idea.

I say to myself, "Self, next year you're doing your Christmas shopping in June."

And here I sit, wondering what Christmas gifts to get the people on my list.

Thanksgiving safety tips offered

Fire Safety

By Martin Grube
Master Firefighter

Your Virginia Beach professional firefighters will be on duty this Thanksgiving as with any holiday and cannot be with their families. Please think about them as you sit down to enjoy your Thanksgiving meal. In order to have a safe holiday, please read and follow the safety tips below and pass this information on to a friend or neighbor.

To avoid confusion and careless errors which may lead to injury make a list the night before Thanksgiving of the items to be cooked and in what order, and place this list on the refrigerator. Refer to the handy list so you will become organized and can concentrate around the hot stove.

• Keep small children out of the kitchen at all times. Hot liquids can cause severe burns to a child's tender skin.

• Turn all pot handles inward and keep towels and cloth mitts away from the burners.

• If a fire starts in the oven, close the door to the oven, turn off the electricity and dial 911. The fire should extinguish itself due to the lack of oxygen. Allow the firefighters to inspect your oven and surrounding cabinets to ascertain if the fire spread.

• If you burn yourself, place the injured part under cold running water for a minimum of five minutes. For a more serious burn, call 911 and an ambulance will respond.

If someone is choking, step up behind the choking victim and deliver sharp blows with a cupped hand to the back between the shoulder blades. If the food is not dislodged, stand behind the victim and place your arms around their waist and pull upward with your interlocked hands. This will force the food out of the esophagus. This technique must be done properly for it to work. Drop by and visit your nearest fire station and ask how it is done.

Please follow these safety tips and enjoy your Thanksgiving dinner. "B" shift will be on duty that day at the fire station, so think about them as you sit down for your feast.

Please keep sending in your answers to the fire safety survey from last week. The results will be printed in the near future.

on business trips or in town for conventions.

"Businesses are affected by a national trend," Ricketts said. "Local businesses are not having a good year."

"Sixty convention bureaus are building or expanding," he added.

Henry Ruiz, administrator of the city's Resort Program office, said, "Corporate business travel is a big market. Tourism encourages economic vitality."

The city's budget for advertising and public relations is $2.3 million.

"We're getting more cooperation with the private sector in ways of promotion," Ruiz said.

"We need more effect on market segments," Ricketts said. He wants to expand an international marketing campaign. Presently advertising campaigns are centered in New York.

A survey is being conducted by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. A preliminary finding shows that two in five visitors in the out-of-state markets are from New York City, Washington, and Pittsburgh. Three out of 10 tourists are Virginia residents and nine out of 10 are from areas to the north and west of Virginia Beach.

The findings also stated that Myrtle Beach and Ocean City are Virginia Beach's two prime competitors.

Other findings show that the majority of visitors come from two-income households and the average visitor spending is $62.81 per day, a 43 percent increase over 1984 spending. It also states that one third spend over $200 daily, and stay in Virginia Beach on the average of 4.3 days.

Seventy percent of the tourists in 1987 are repeat visitors. Only 43 percent in 1986 were repeat visitors.

A capital improvement program has been designed to improve Virginia Beach's resort area.

The master plan of the capital improvement program has two phases although the total program designates 10 areas for improvement.

"The master plan prioritizes the water, beach, Atlantic Avenue, and the connecting streets in between," Ruiz said.

Phase one involves planting, paving, seating, lighting and graphics along 11 blocks of the boardwalk and four substreets or connector parks. Phase one is estimated to be completed by May of 1988.

Phase two involves a similar streetscape demonstration on Atlantic Avenue estimated for completion between October of 1988 and May of 1989.

The proposal will remove the three-foot section of curbing and provide five feet of pavers for benching and landscaping.

Ruiz said that the present boardwalk looks like a "mini interstate" and the master plan will "create a people environment."

The city presently has $7 million to fund the master plan and the five-year capital program will have an estimated $12 million in funds by 1992.

"We have the funds already, making the project more popularly accepted," Ruiz said.

Acquisition presented to mayor

The Friends of Francis Land House, a non-profit group commissioned to raise funds to furnish the Francis Land House, recently presented Mayor Robert Jones with the first acquisition for the House. The City of Virginia Beach purchased the 18th Century Historic Site in 1975.

The first acquisition presented is an elegant copy of an original George I side chair. The cabriole legs in front are decorated with a scalloped shell and bellflower motif finished in antiqued gold leaf. The original of this piece is English, circa 1725.

The Friends of Francis Land House are continuing to promote the House through special events, fund raising, and solicitation of memberships.

The Friends have chartered a bus for the Grand Illumination in Williamsburg on Sunday, Dec. 13. Plans are to leave the Land House parking lot at 3 p.m. Call 467-1549 for information.

Those interested in membership in the Friends of Francis Land House may notify Doris Seymour, membership chairman, Francis Land House, 3131 Virginia Beach Boulevard, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452 for an application.

for gift certificates so families can get fresh food.

Churches and other organizations will also serve food to needy families. The Parish of the Holy Spirit, on Lynnhaven Parkway, will be serving Thanksgiving dinner to needy families along with many other churches in Virginia Beach, Harrison said.

Ford completes two tournaments for Longwood

The Longwood men's golf team finished their fall season with a record of 1-3. The team's best score for the season is 320 against Radford. Their overall team stroke average was 346.8 for seven rounds.

This is a rebuilding year for the Lancers, who graduated four starters from last year's team. Out of the nine men squad this year, only two are returnees. Coach Steve Nelson said the new squad has potential and he is looking forward to increased success in the spring season.

Senior Dan Ford, from Virginia Beach, competed for the Lancers in two tournaments this fall, the Old Dominion Tournament and the W&L Invitational. His best performance came at W&L where he shot a 97-81-178.

Ford attended First Colonial High School. He is a fitness major at Longwood and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Ford III of Virginia Beach.

Angie Hill

Hill will play in Longwood opener

Longwood women's basketball coach Shirley Duncan expects to have five veterans in the starting lineup when the Lady Lancers open their 1987-88 season in the Mount Olive Tournament in Mount Olive, N.C.

Senior Angie Hill, of Virginia Beach, will see considerable playing time.

Hill is a guard for the Lady Lancers at five feet eight inches tall. She is a graduate from Buyside High School in Virginia Beach.

Benefit set for Broad Bay Garden Club

Broad Bay Garden Club will present "Christmas in a Contemporary Castle" on Wednesday, Dec. 2 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Mullany at 2317 Broad Bay Road.

The benefit is for Virginia Beach Beautification and the American Cancer Society.

Back Bay refuge offers bus tour for seniors

Back Bay National Wildlife refuge will offer a bus tour for senior citizens and handicapped individuals on Sunday, Nov. 29 at 1 until 3 p.m.

The bus will take the group along the interior dike roads of the refuge to view migratory ducks, geese, swans and other wildlife.

Reservations are needed. Call 721-2412 for more information. General film programs will also be presented Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 28 and 29 in the V.C.S. auditorium at 10:30 and 2:30 p.m.

Hearing scheduled for Pungo Ferry Road

The City of Virginia Beach will hold a design public hearing for the Pungo Ferry Bridge Project on Wednesday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m., in the cafeteria of the Creeds Elementary School at 920 Princess Anne Road. The hearing will be preceded by an informational workshop session at 6 p.m.

The project involves the replacement of the Pungo Ferry Road between its junction with Princess Anne and a point 3000 feet west of the existing bridge.

For further information, contact Steven A. Shedd, Sverdrup Corporation, 463-2026.

Bloodmobile will be at Pembroke Nov. 27

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Virginia Beach at Pembroke Mall on Friday, Nov. 27, in the New East Wing from 2 to 8 p.m.

For more information on upcoming blood drives contact the Tidewater Chapter of the Red Cross at 446-7765.

Shinley celebrates 80th year with family

In honor of John Cecil Shinley's Sr., 80th birthday, his children and grandchildren gave him a pig-picking party.

About 150 guests attended the festivity.

His children are John Cecil Shinley Jr., Evan Labon Shinley, and Mary Catherine Shinley Anderson. His grandchildren that attended were: Mickey C. Shinley, Michael E. Shinley, Robert C. Shinley and Wendy and Lori Anderson. One great grandchild was also in attendance, Joshua Shinley.

The pig was cooked by Rodney and Philip Foster.

Shinley's two sisters, Myrtle Shinley Walton and Catherine Shinley Chaulton were present and all of the men from the Blackwater Hunt Club attended.

Shinley also received a birthday card from Nancy and Ronald Reagan.

PUBLIC HEARING

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, December 8, 1987 at 12:00 Noon in the Council Chambers of the City Hall Building, Princess Anne Courthouse, Virginia Beach, Virginia. A briefing session will be held at 9:00 a.m. in the Planning Department Conference Room, Operations Building. Planning Commission action is not a final determination of the application, but only a recommendation to the City Council as the viewpoint of the Planning Commission. Final determination of the application is to be made by City Council at a later date, after Public Notice in a newspaper having general circulation within the city.

Those members of the public interested in attending the Public Hearing should be advised that, for reasons the Planning Commission deems appropriate, certain items on the agenda may be heard out of order and that it should not be assumed that the order listed below will be exactly followed during the Public Hearing.

The staff reviews of some or all of the items on this agenda suggest that certain conditions be attached to approval by City Council. However, it should not be assumed that those conditions will be ultimately attached to the project. Staff agencies may impose further conditions and requirements during administration of applicable city ordinances.

Pembroke Meadows "Say No to Drugs" with a school-wide balloon launch

During the week of Nov. 16 through 20, all Virginia Beach city public schools were encouraged to participate in a division-wide promotion, "Communities and Schools Without Drugs - Get It Straight, Accept the Challenge."

This week served to introduce school division's year-long campaign against substance abuse, "Communities and Schools Without Drugs - The Challenge."

The purpose of this district-wide effort is for schools to develop and sponsor activities that will increase student awareness and knowledge of substance abuse. Pembroke

Meadows Elementary sponsored many activities in coordination with this special week.

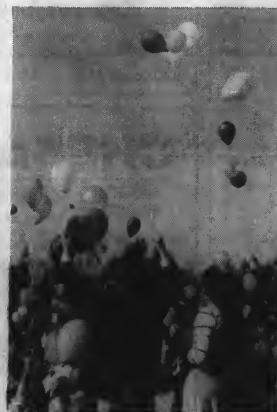

The Balloon Launch

On Monday, Nov. 16, the kick-off activity, for this year-long program, a school-wide balloon launch and flag raising ceremony took place.

Each student of the school held a helium filled balloon with a "We Say No To Drugs" pledge attached. The principal of Pembroke Meadows, Drummond Ball, acted as the master of ceremonies. The flag raising was done by Brownie Troop 247. Barden Winstead, SCA President led the school in the Pledge of Allegiance. Judy Wunnenberg, PTA President gave the students a substance abuse related "thought for the day." Betty Wade Perry, PTA Coordinator for the event explained to the student body the activities for the coming week. Mrs. Phyllis Taylor, Reading Specialist led the children in a special pledge against drugs.

As Mrs. Lindley Fox, music teacher, led the students in patriotic songs, over 750 balloons flew their "drug free" pledges to the skies. The school's name and address accompanied each pledge. The first response of a balloon found was called in from Newtown Elementary later the same day.

The first balloons were released by Mrs. Lindley Fox, music teacher, and Mr. Drummond Ball, principal at Pembroke Meadows.

Malibu

Pledge "Just Say No" was prepared by the art teacher, Bonnie Gull, and signed by each student and staff member at Malibu. The huge scroll hung from the ceiling of the cafeteria.

Each day the children were given some activity to help reinforce their Pledge "Just Say No to Drugs."

To finish up the big week a rally including every child and staff member was held and prizes of Just Say No T-shirts, buttons and pencils were given to the contest winners. Helium balloons with personal messages were released by all 536 children at Malibu.

Mr. John Prime, the principal, said "The messages include the school address and phone number; we hope the finder of the messages will call. We had a similar balloon release once before, which was very successful and had a caller from Maryland who had found one of our balloons."

"Just Say No to Drugs" an important but tiny message, out of the mouths of Babes.
